IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA

OSPREY LLC,

Plaintiff,

v.

ALFIE PET, et al.,

Defendants.

Civil Action No.

FILED UNDER SEAL

I. INTRODUCTION

Plaintiff Osprey LLC (“Osprey” or “Plaintiff”) submits this memorandum of law in support of its ex parte application for: 1) a temporary restraining order; 2) an order restraining assets and Merchant Storefronts (as defined infra); 3) an order to show cause why a preliminary injunction should not issue; and 4) an order authorizing expedited discovery against above-referenced Defendants (hereinafter collectively referred to as “Defendants” or individually as “Defendant”) and the third party entities identified below (“Application”).<sup>1</sup>

Specifically, Plaintiff has obtained evidence clearly demonstrating that (a) Defendants are promoting, selling, offering for sale and distributing their Infringing Products<sup>2</sup>, (b) unfairly competing by using Plaintiff’s photographs, videos, artwork, creative text, product instructions, trade dress, and registered FrogLog® trademark while marketing their knock-off products in a willful attempt to pass off their knock-off products as genuine versions of Plaintiff’s Product, and (c) Defendants accomplish their infringing sales through the use of, at least, the Internet based e-commerce stores operated via at least one of the Amazon.com, eBay.com, Wish.com or AliExpress.com Internet marketplace platforms. Based on this evidence, Plaintiff's Complaint alleges claims for federal unfair competition in violation of Section 43(a) of the Trademark Act of 1946, as amended; federal trademark infringement and counterfeiting; common law unfair competition; and common law trademark infringement, all pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 1125(a), , 15 U.S.C. § 1114, and The All Writs Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1651(a).

<sup>1</sup> Plaintiff acknowledges it is seeking multiple forms of relief. Plaintiff will promptly provide supplemental briefing or oral argument on any issue should the Court request it.

Defendants' sale, distribution, and advertising of the Infringing Product are highly likely to cause consumers to believe that Defendants are offering Plaintiff's genuine product when in fact they are not. To illustrate, below are several examples which vividly show that the Infringing Product itself and the manner in which it is marketed is designed to confuse and mislead consumers into believing that they are purchasing Plaintiff's genuine product or that the Infringing Product is otherwise approved by or sourced from Plaintiff:

Photographs used by Defendant Good Impression Store

Photographs used by Defendant Sunt498

See Declaration of Richard Mason (the “Mason Dec.”) at ¶ 18.

Defendants' actions have resulted in actual confusion in the marketplace between Defendants' Infringing Product and Plaintiff's genuine products. Id. at ¶ 19. Numerous purchasers of Defendants' Infringing Product have written emails and reviews to complain about the quality of the Infringing Product believing same to be a genuine version of Plaintiff's Product. ....“Aloha. I wanted to reach out about the Frog Log I received today. I am not one to go on social media and write bad reviews, so I wanted to let you know directly. This is the second time I have purchased your product. ....My first one was amazing!!!...I have to say, I am super disappointed with it. It is very obvious that it is a different manufacturer. The blue fabric is much thinner and not as sturdy. The inflatable is as thin as a beach ball....there is no pouch to put the sand into the end, and there are not even directions or any materials to promote your company. It all came smashed into a cheap baggie. Even the side supports were wrapped around....I just thought you should know that the change in the product is really disappointing.” Id. Such complaints and negative comments are likely not just made directly to Plaintiff, but are also posted by buyers of the Infringing Products on various websites and social media sites for all the world to see. See id.

Defendants' Infringing Products are cheaply produced and substantially inferior to the genuine product. Id. at ¶¶ 28 - 29. Plaintiff's genuine products are made of pool chemical safe products; it is unknown what Defendants' Infringing Products are made from. Id. at ¶20. As poorly designed and manufactured products, Defendants' Infringing Products create serious risk since they are intended to help rescue small animals and insects and a failure may result in death to intended rescued creatures. Likewise, improper or missing instructions pose a further risk that the product will not be used safely for its intended purpose. Many if not all of the Infringing Products have not been properly labeled with warnings and proper usage. Id.

According to the Fiscal Year 2018 U.S. Customs and Border Protection (“CBP”) Intellectual Property Seizure Statistics Report, e-commerce sales have resulted in a sharp increase in the shipment of unauthorized products into the United States. Declaration of Stanley D. Ference III (the “Ference Dec.”) at ¶ 3. Over 90% of all CBP intellectual property seizures were smaller international mail and express shipments (as opposed to large shipping containers). Id. Over 85% of CBP seizures originated from mainland China and Hong Kong. Id.. According to a report released by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce Global Intellectual Property Center (GIPC) titled Measuring the Magnitude of Global Counterfeiting, at least 86 percent of all global counterfeit products originate in Chinese and Hong Kong markets. Id. at ¶ 4. A February 2017 report commissioned by Business Action to Stop Counterfeiting and Piracy (BASCAP) and the International Trademark Association (INTA) entitled The Economic Impacts of Counterfeiting and Piracy included findings that counterfeit and pirated products account for billions in economic losses, resulting in tens of thousands of lost jobs for legitimate businesses and broader economic losses, including lost tax revenue. Id. at ¶ 5.

Defendants’ unlawful activities have deprived and continue to deprive Plaintiff of its rights to fair competition. By their activities, Defendants are defrauding Plaintiff and the consuming public for Defendants’ benefit. Defendants should not be permitted to continue their unlawful activities, which are causing Plaintiff ongoing irreparable harm. Accordingly, Plaintiff is seeking entry of a temporary restraining order prohibiting Defendants’ further wrongful unfair competition.

Plaintiff also seeks to restrain the illegal profits generated by Defendants. Plaintiff has obtained evidence that Defendants operating their Seller IDs via Amazon.com (“Amazon”) necessarily use money transfer and/or retention/processing services with Amazon as a method to receive monies generated through the sale of counterfeit products. Amazon operates as a money transmitter for sales made on Amazon and as such Amazon has the ability to identify, and restrain, the payment accounts associated with the Defendants who use their respective Seller IDs via Amazon to conduct their commercial transactions. See Declaration of Brian Samuel Malkin (“Malkin Dec.”), ¶ 1 - 9. Additionally, Plaintiff also obtained evidence that the Defendants operating their Seller IDs via eBay.com use money transfer and retention services with PayPal, Inc. (“PayPal”) as a method for accepting payment for the sale of their counterfeit products. Id. and Taylor Dec. Furthermore, Plaintiff obtained evidence that Defendants operating their Seller IDs via Wish.com have their payments processed on their behalf using an aggregate escrow account in the name of ContextLogic, Inc. (“ContextLogic”). Id. Lastly, Plaintiff has obtained evidence that Defendants operating their Seller IDs via AliExpress.com (“AliExpress”) have their payments processed on their behalf using aggregate escrow accounts in the name of Alibaba.com Hong Kong Limited, which operates the AliExpress.com platform (i.e., “AliExpress”), and its related companies, Zhejiang Ant Small and Micro Financial Services Group Co., Ltd. Alipay (China) Internet Technology Co. Ltd., and Alipay.com Co., Ltd. (collectively referred to as “Alipay”).<sup>3</sup> Id.

In light of the inherently deceptive nature of the counterfeiting and knock-off business, Plaintiffs have good reason to believe that many of the Defendants may be foreign and will hide or transfer their ill-gotten assets beyond the jurisdiction of this Court unless they are restrained. As for the Defendants that have self-identified as U.S.- based, in Pennsylvania, a pre-judgment

II. STATEMENT OF FACTS

A. Plaintiff’s FROGLOG® Animal Rescue Device

Mason founded Plaintiff in 2005. Declaration of Richard Mason (“Mason Dec.”), ¶ 6. He invented the FrogLog® back in 2004 when good friends of his became upset that they were finding many dead frogs in the skimmer of their pool. Id. at ¶ 5. During one morning, his friends found a total of 53 frogs and toads in their pool. Id. Other friends with swimming pools also said frogs were regularly found in their pools. In addition to frogs, there was the occasional mole, mouse, baby bird, opossum, turtle, salamander, squirrel, bat, chipmunk, and more. Id. As an animal biologist, Mason wanted to prevent these needless deaths if possible. Id. He set to work and researched the problem, but there was nothing very effective on the market. Id. He knew that the animal’s natural instinct was to swim all around the edge of the water looking for a way to get out. His thought was that if, while instinctively swimming along the edge of the pool, the frogs could somehow find and climb across a bridge from the pool to the land, they would be able to escape to their safety, before tiring and getting sucked into the pool skimmer. Id.

Using foam, fabric, and needle and thread, Mason built a few prototypes and put them into service. Id. at ¶ 6. He tested the invention by setting up cone traps at the end of the bridge. Id. Over a 23-day period, a total of 50 frogs were rescued from the pool. Id. In the early years of developing the FrogLog, Mason spent several thousand hours catching various species of wildlife, placing them in the pool and observing how they react and use or not use multiple different prototypes of the product. Id. This took place over countless hours and many different prototypes. Id. Developing the prototypes also took many, many hours and required a financial commitment. Id. Mason made modifications and continued testing and gave out more prototypes and continued to test from 2004 to 2005. Id. Reports from the fields were very positive and his invention was actually saving frogs, toads, small insects (like crickets) and small animals too. Id. Today, Plaintiff sells the animal rescue device under the brand FrogLog® (“Plaintiff’s Product”). Id.

Plaintiff’s Product has been featured in videos, articles, or podcasts by numerous media outlets. Id. at ¶ 7.<sup>5</sup>

Genuine goods bearing Plaintiff’s Mark and Trade Dress (as defined below) are widely legitimately advertised and promoted by Plaintiff, its authorized distributors, and unrelated third parties via the Internet. Id. at ¶ 8. Over the past several years, visibility on the Internet, particularly via Internet search engines such as Google, Yahoo!, and Bing has become increasingly important to Plaintiff’s overall marketing. Id.

Thus, Plaintiff and its authorized distributors expend significant monetary resources on Internet marketing, including search engine optimization (“SEO”) strategies. Id. at ¶ 9. Other costs include print catalog ads, tradeshows, and handing out free samples. Id. Those strategies allow Plaintiff and its authorized retailers to fairly and legitimately educate consumers about the value associated with Plaintiff’s brand and the goods sold thereunder. Id. Similarly, Defendants’ individual seller’s stores are indexed on search engines and compete directly with Plaintiff for space in the search results. Id.

B. Plaintiff’s Rights

Plaintiff developed and sells its animal rescue device under the registered FrogLog® trademark U.S. Reg. No. 5,390,968 for “Non-metal floating container comprised of a fabric pouch containing an inflated bladder and sandbag, placed on the edge of a swimming pool for small animals to escape using the ramp attached to the floating device” in class 20. (“Plaintiff’s Mark”). Id. at ¶ 10. A copy of the registration certificate is attached to the Complaint as Exhibit 3.

The Plaintiff’s Product is designed to permit small animals and insects to rescue themselves from being trapped in a pool. Id. at ¶ 11. The Plaintiff’s Product is royal blue, made of pool chemical safe materials, and comprises a floating platform in a distinct half-moon shape (“Island”) using an inflatable bladder for floating on the water. Id. The Island is connected to a rectangular animal rescue bridge (“Bridge”) connected to a square weighted pouch to keep the device in place on the pool deck (“Dock”). Id. The Plaintiff’s Product includes distinct and non-functional design aspects, including its shape, color, and configuration. Id. Plaintiff identified the need for this product and created the market for this product. Id. Below are images of one of Plaintiff's Products as photographed in use in my friends' pool (with red brick lip and brown Mediterranean tile liner). Id. The Plaintiff's Product retails for $19.95:

The combined distinct features of the container and the Plaintiff's Mark, all function as a trade dress so that consumers are certain that Plaintiff is the source of the FrogLog®. Plaintiff is also the owner of various published photographs, videos, artwork, creative text and product instructions appearing on its web site froglog.us. ("Plaintiff's Works"). Screen shots of the Plaintiff's Mark, Plaintiff's Trade Dress, and Plaintiff's Works are shown in Complaint Exhibit 2. Id. at ¶ 12.

The arrangement and combination of these features are arbitrary, non-functional, and fanciful and constitute legally protectable trade dress. Id. at 13. The Plaintiff's Trade Dress has acquired secondary meaning identifying Plaintiff as the source of the products bearing it. Id. The secondary meaning was acquired prior to use of the Plaintiff's Trade Dress by Defendants. Id.

Plaintiff's Mark and Trade Dress have been used in interstate commerce to identify and distinguish Plaintiff's goods. Id. at 14. Plaintiff's Mark and Trade Dress have been used by Plaintiff prior in time to Defendants' use of this mark. Id. Plaintiff's Mark and Trade Dress have never been assigned or licensed to any of the Defendants in this matter. Id. The Plaintiff's Mark and Trade Dress are a symbol of Plaintiff's quality, reputation, and goodwill and have never been abandoned. Id.

C. Plaintiff's Efforts to Police the Defendants' Conduct

The Defendants use the interactive commercial Internet websites and Internet based e-commerce stores using the Seller IDs set forth on “Schedule A” to the Complaint. See Odell Dec.<sup>6</sup>, ¶ 3. These interactive commercial Internet websites provide on-line Merchant Storefronts (as defined infra) that allow the Defendants to maintain their anonymity while advertising, offering for sale, and selling Infringing Products into the United States and into Pennsylvania. The Internet marketplaces used by these Defendants include AliExpress.com, Amazon.com, eBay.com, and wish.com. See Odell Dec., ¶ 3 and Composite Exhibit 1 attached thereto.

Plaintiff has been forced to police the various Internet marketplaces to identify and seek takedowns of unlawful listings for the Infringing Products since allowing the unlawful listings to continue is causing damage to Plaintiff's reputation and bottom line. Mason Dec., at ¶ 16. Some Defendants sell their fake version of Plaintiff's Product at a fraction of the controlled retail price. Id. Because of the software provided by the various Internet marketplaces, the lowest priced items are sorted to the top and/or promoted by the software and then purchased by the consumers. Id. The Plaintiff's Product is ignored. Id. Plaintiff has had varied success in identifying and requesting takedowns of the various unlawful listings and as soon as one is taken down another unlawful listing replaces it. Id.

Another major problem with the Internet marketplaces is that there is a direct and convenient connection between various Chinese<sup>7</sup> and other unidentified manufactures to the

<sup>6</sup> Refers to the Declaration of Dee Odell in Support of Plaintiff's Application for Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction, filed herewith.

<sup>7</sup> Prior to filing this lawsuit, Plaintiff viewed a public seller profile that is published by each Defendant's storefront that purports to identify the name and address of the Defendant. Solely based upon their representation of their seller storefronts, the following Defendants have identified themselves as US-based and are not at this time

Infringing Products. Id. In essence, a counterfeiter in Vietnam or Russia, for example, may order a crate of Infringing Products from a Chinese manufacturer, have them drop shipped to a fulfillment center in the United States, and then sell the Infringing Products to a US consumer through a Third Party Service Provider. Id. The ease of this system encourages knock-offs to flourish. Id.

For these reasons, Plaintiff retained the legal counsel of Ference & Associates LLC (“the Ference firm”) to perform the policing of various Internet marketplaces. Id. at ¶ 17. During the process, the Ference firm identified many Chinese manufacturers operating on Marketplace Storefronts hosted by the Internet marketplaces. See id. These manufacturers were supplying many of the other identified Defendants with infringing products flooding the Internet marketplaces and damaging Plaintiff’s business. This damage to Plaintiff’s business will continue unless Plaintiff receives the sought after restraining order and injunctive relief. Id.

alleged to be foreign sellers: Alfie Pet, Bingwei Chi, BIRDINSKY LLC, EXKRT, House of Retail, brandyo, frayedknot03, hanksattitreasures, and treasure_hunter_4life.

D. The Defendants' Wrongful Conduct

Defendants do not have, nor have they ever had, the right or authority to use Plaintiff's Mark or Trade Dress or Works, and/or substantially similar copies of Plaintiff's Works for any purpose. Id. at ¶ 22. Defendants' unlawful activities have deprived and continue to deprive Plaintiff of its rights to fair competition. Id. By their activities, Defendants are defrauding Plaintiff and the consuming public for Defendants' benefit. Id. Defendants should not be permitted to continue their unlawful activities, which are causing Plaintiff ongoing irreparable harm. Id. Accordingly, Plaintiff is seeking entry of a temporary restraining order prohibiting Defendants' further wrongful unfair competition and infringement of Plaintiff's Mark, Trade Dress, and Works. Id.

Given Defendants' copying and use of Plaintiff's Mark and/or Trade Dress and/or Works, and/or substantially similar copies of Plaintiff's Works, the Infringing Products are indistinguishable to consumers, both at the point of sale and post-sale. Id. at ¶ 23. By using Plaintiff's intellectual property, Defendants have created a false association between their Infringing Products, their Internet e-commerce stores, and Plaintiff. Id. Such false association is in violation of 15 U.S.C. § 1125(a), constitutes trademark infringement, and is causing and will continue to cause Plaintiff irreparable harm and damage. Id. at ¶ 23.

The infringements of Plaintiff's Works deprive Plaintiff of the ability to control the creative content protected by the copyright, it devalues the Plaintiff's FrogLog® animal rescue device brand by associating it with inferior quality goods, and it undermines the value of the Plaintiff's IP by creating the impression that infringement may be undertaken with impunity which threatens Plaintiff's ability to attract investors and markets for the Plaintiff's Products. Id. at ¶ 24.

As part of Plaintiff's counsel's ongoing investigation regarding the sale of Infringing Products, Plaintiff's counsel investigated the promotion and sale of Infringing Products by Defendants and obtained available payment account data for receipt of funds by Defendants for the sale of knock-off versions of Plaintiff's genuine products through the Seller IDs. Odell Dec., ¶ 3. Through visual inspection of Defendants' listings for Infringing Products, it was confirmed that each Defendant is featuring, displaying, and/or using the Plaintiff's Mark and/or Trade Dress and/or Works, and/or substantially similar copies of Plaintiff's Works without authorization and that the products that each Defendant is offering for sale, using virtually identical copies of Plaintiff's Mark and/or Trade Dress and/or Works, and/or substantially similar copies of Plaintiff's Works are, in fact, not genuine products. Id. The checkout pages or order forms for the Infringing Products confirm that each Defendant was and/or is still currently offering for sale and/or selling Infringing Products through their respective Merchant Storefronts and User Accounts and that each Defendant provides shipping and/or has actually shipped Infringing products to the United States, including to customers located in Pennsylvania. At checkout, a shipping address located in the Pittsburgh area ("the Pennsylvania Address") in the Western District of Pennsylvania verified that each Defendant provides shipping to the Pennsylvania Address. Id. Plaintiff's President inspected the detailed web listings describing the Infringing Products Defendants are offering for sale through the Internet based e-commerce stores operating under each of their respective Seller IDs, and determined the products were not genuine versions of Plaintiff's products. Each product ordered and received was physically examined to confirm that it was not authentic. Id. and Composite Exhibit 1, and Mason Dec., ¶¶ 25 – 28.<sup>8</sup>

<sup>8</sup> See e.g., Gucci Am., Inc. v. Tyrrell-Miller, 678 F. Supp. 2d 117, 119 (S.D.N.Y. 2008) (Plaintiff's Intellectual Property Manager found that the products offered for sale on the Defendant's websites were non-genuine counterfeit products, based on a visual inspection of Defendant's websites); Malletier v.

Section 43(a) of the Lanham Act prohibits the use “in commerce [of] any word, term, name, symbol, or device, or any combination thereof, or any false designation of origin, false or misleading description of fact, or false or misleading representation of fact, which – (a) is likely to cause confusion, or to cause mistake, or to deceive as to the affiliation, connection, or association of such person with another person, or as to the origin, sponsorship, or approval of his or her goods, services, or commercial activities by another person.” 15 U.S.C. § 1125(a). A comparison of Plaintiff’s Mark and/or Trade Dress and/or Works, and/or substantially similar copies of Plaintiff’s Works to the advertising and offering for sale of Defendants’ products reveals the obvious knock-off and infringing nature of Defendants’ activities. Defendants’ goods are being promoted, advertised, offered for sale, and sold by Defendants to consumers within this district and throughout the United States. Defendants are making substantial sums of money by preying upon members of the general public, many of whom have no knowledge Defendants are defrauding them. Defendants are also falsely representing to consumers that their goods are genuine, authentic, endorsed, and authorized by Plaintiff. Moreover, Defendant’s use of Plaintiff’s Mark constitutes trademark infringement and counterfeiting. Ultimately, Defendants’ Internet activities infringe upon Plaintiff’s intellectual property rights. The Seller IDs, and associated payment accounts, are a substantial part of the means by which Defendants further their scheme and cause harm to Plaintiff.

In light of the covert nature of Defendants' offshore and infringing activities and the importance of creating economic disincentives for such infringing activities, courts have recognized these concerns and routinely grant ex parte applications for relief in cases asserting Section 43(a) violations on the Internet, trademark infringement and counterfeiting.<sup>9</sup> Accordingly, Plaintiff respectfully requests that this Court grant their ex parte Application for the following: 1) a temporary restraining order; 2) an order restraining assets and Merchant Storefronts; 3) an order to show cause why a preliminary injunction should not issue; and 4) an order authorizing expedited discovery against Defendants, the Third Party Service Provider and Financial Institutions.

III. ARGUMENT

A. THIS COURT HAS PERSONAL JURISDICTION OVER DEFENDANTS

Federal courts “may assert personal jurisdiction over a nonresident of the state in which the court sits to the extent authorized by the law of that state.” D’Jamoos v. Pilatus Aircraft, 566 F.3d 94, 102 (3d Cir. 2009) (quoting Provident Nat’l Bank v. Cal. Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass’n, 819 F. 2d 434, 436 (3rd Cir. 1987)). This determination entails a two-step inquiry. First, the court must determine whether the long-arm statute of the forum allows courts of that state to exercise jurisdiction over the defendant. Fed. R. Civ. P. 4 (e) (1). Second, if the forum state allows jurisdiction, the court must determine whether exercising personal jurisdiction over the defendant in a given case is consistent with the Due Process Clause of the U.S. Constitution. See IMO Industries, Inc. v. Kiekert AG, 155 F.3d 254, 259 (3rd Cir.1998). As alleged herein, Defendants’ unlawful, counterfeiting and infringing activities subject them to long-arm jurisdiction in Pennsylvania under 42 P. A. Cons. Stat. § 5322. Furthermore, Pennsylvania’s exercise of jurisdiction over Defendants thereunder comports with due process.

1. Defendants are Subject to Personal Jurisdiction Under 42 P.A. C.S.A. § 5322

Pennsylvania authorizes personal jurisdiction over the Defendant pursuant to 42 Pa. Cons. Stat § 5322 (a) which provides in pertinent part: “A tribunal of this Commonwealth may exercise personal jurisdiction over a person ... as to a cause of action or other matter arising from such person: (1) Transacting any business in this Commonwealth. Without excluding other acts which may constitute transacting business for the purpose of this paragraph: (ii) The doing of a single act in this Commonwealth for the purpose of thereby realizing pecuniary benefit... (3) Causing harm or tortious injury by an act or omission in this Commonwealth. (4) Causing harm or tortious injury by an act or omission outside this Commonwealth. . . . (10) Committing any violation within the jurisdiction of the Commonwealth of any statute, home rule charter, local ordinance or resolution, or rule or regulation promulgated thereunder by any government unit or of any order of court or other government unit.”

Courts have regularly conferred personal jurisdiction on a given defendant based on that defendant’s operation of a fully interactive website through which consumers can access the site from anywhere and purchase products, as is the case with Defendants’ User Accounts and Merchant Storefronts, and allow for customers all over the world (including within Allegheny County, Pennsylvania) to view and purchase products, including Infringing Products, as demonstrated by the websites themselves and Plaintiff’s purchase of Infringing Products. See Odell Dec., ¶ 3 and Composite Exhibit 1, and Mason Dec., ¶ 27 - 29. See n. 8, infra. (collecting cases in which operating interactive web sites was deemed sufficient to confer personal jurisdiction upon the Court).

Here, by advertising, offering for sale, selling, distributing and shipping retail products directly to consumers across the world, including consumers located throughout the U.S. and specifically in Pennsylvania, Defendants have committed tortious acts, as alleged herein, outside of Pennsylvania, thus directly giving rise to the claims asserted in the instant action. See Odell Dec., ¶ 2 and Composite Exhibit 1; see also Lorillard Tobacco Co. v. Applewood Party Store, Inc., 2006 WL 2925288 (E.D. Mich. 2006) (defendant's local sale of counterfeit "Newport" cigarettes had an economic effect on interstate commerce); AI Mortg. Corp. v. AI Mortg. and Financial Services, LLC, 2006 WL 1437744 (W.D. Pa. 2006) (while plaintiff's provision of services was "predominantly intrastate" in character, its mark was eligible for protection since, even absent an interstate sale, its advertising crossed state lines and, therefore, had entered interstate commerce), see later opinion, A-1 Mortg. Corp. v. Day One Mortg., LLC, 2007 WL 30317 (W.D. Pa. 2007) (court awarded permanent injunctive relief in its award of summary judgment to plaintiff).

Here, the injury clearly occurred within Pennsylvania, as Defendants' Infringing Listings, resulted in consumers throughout the U.S., and specifically in Pennsylvania, purchasing Infringing Products. See Odell Dec., ¶ 2 and Composite Exhibit 1. As a direct result of Defendants' infringing actions, Plaintiff has suffered harm in Pennsylvania through lost sales in Pennsylvania and lost Pennsylvania consumers. See Mason Dec., ¶¶ 27 - 31.

Accordingly, this Court has personal jurisdiction over Defendants who have intentionally availed themselves of the opportunity to do business in Pennsylvania, and specifically in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, through their fully interactive web sites, as well as yet undiscovered online marketplaces, to offer for sale and/or sell Infringing Products. The identified Defendants merely use fanciful and made up store names or seller ids without complete addresses, contact information, phones numbers and the like. See Ference Dec., ¶¶ 6 - 7; Defendants used and continue to advertise, market, promote, offer for sale, sell, distribute and/or import Infringing Products to Pennsylvania customers and/or potential customers, including in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania. See Mason Dec. ¶¶ 27 - 31.

Here, the fact that Defendants have chosen to open their respective User Accounts for the purpose of selling Infringing Products through their Merchant Storefronts, as well as any and all as yet undiscovered online marketplace platforms, alone supports a finding that Defendants have intentionally used these marketplace platforms, "as a means for establishing regular business with a remote forum.” EnviroCare Techs, LLC v. Simanovsky, No. 11-CV-3458, 2012 U.S. Dist.. LEXIS 78088, at *10 (E.D.N.Y. June 4, 2012) (quoting Boschetto v. Hansing, 539 F.3d 1011, 1019 (9th Cir. 2008)); see also Lifeguard Licensing Corp., 2016 U.S. Dist.. LEXIS 89149, at *8 and EnviroCare Techs., LLC, 2012 U.S. Dist.. LEXIS 78088, at *10. Courts have indeed found that “commercial sellers” on “well-known, national . . . website[s]” are in fact subject to personal jurisdiction, as these Defendants “must have been able to foresee the possibility of being hauled into court [in the present jurisdiction].” Malcom v. Esposito, 63 Va. Cir. 440, 446 (Cir. Ct. 2003); see also EnviroCare Techs., LLC, 2012 U.S. Dist.. LEXIS 78088, at *12.

Whether a Defendant physically shipped Infringing Products into Pennsylvania is not determinative of whether personal jurisdiction exists, as courts in this Circuit examine a given defendant’s online interactions with consumers in considering whether a particular defendant has transacted business in the forum state. See Odell Dec. ¶ 2. See Zippo Mfg. Co., 952 F. Supp. at 1119; Rolex Watch, U.S.A., Inc. v. Pharel, 09 CV 4810 (RRM) (ALC), 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 32249, at 6 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 11, 2011) (finding personal jurisdiction over defendant, a resident of South Carolina, because he transacted business in New York by monitoring and responding to inquiries for counterfeit watches through websites accessible in New York). Plaintiff and Plaintiff’s counsel have viewed Defendant’s Infringing Products via their online User Accounts and Merchant Storefronts. See Odell Dec., ¶ 2 and Mason Dec. ¶¶ 27 - 30.<sup>10</sup> Thus, Defendants’

<sup>10</sup> See Skrodzki v. Marcello, 810 F. Supp. 2d 501, 512-13 (E.D.N.Y. 2011), and that, “[t]he offering for sale of even one copy of an allegedly infringing item, even if no sale results, is sufficient to give personal jurisdiction over the alleged infringer under N.Y. CPLR § 302. Cartier v. Seah LLC, 598 F. Supp. 2d 422, 425 (S.D.N.Y. 2009). Moreover, under Second Circuit case law, when analyzing personal jurisdiction in the Internet context, “traditional statutory and constitutional principles remain the touchstone of the inquiry,” and while a website’s interactivity, “may be useful” for analyzing personal jurisdiction ‘insofar as it helps to decide whether the defendant ‘transacts any business’ in New York,’” ... “it does not amount to a separate framework for analyzing internet-based jurisdiction.” Best Van Lines, Inc., 490 F.3d at 252 (quoting Best Van Lines, Inc. v. Walker, No. 03- Civ. 6585 (GEL), 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7830, at *9 (S.D.N.Y. May 4, 2004)) (citing Zippo Manufacturing Co. v. Zippo Dot Com, Inc., 952 F. Supp. 1119 (W.D. Pa. 1997)). Sister circuits similarly rely on the traditional sophisticated commercial operations, specifically including their offering for sale and/or selling of Infringing Products through their highly interactive User Accounts and Merchant Storefronts, along with Defendants' own representations on their Merchant Storefronts that they ship Infringing Products to the U.S., including to Pennsylvania addresses, unequivocally establishes principles guiding the personal jurisdiction analysis when analyzing the same in the Internet context, namely the Eleventh Circuit (see, e.g., Oldfield v. Pueblo De Bahia Lora, S.A., 558 F.3d 1210, 1219-1224 (11th Cir. 2011) (criticizing the over-reliance on the sliding scale of interactivity analysis and instead applying a traditional personal jurisdiction analysis in an Internet case where the website was fully interactive); see also Louis Vuitton Malletier, S.A. v. Mosseri, 736 F.3d 1339, 1356-58 (11th Cir. 2013) (applying the traditional purposeful availment test in a case where defendant's fully interactive website was accessible in Florida, and was selling and distributing infringing goods through his website to Florida consumers), and the Seventh Circuit (see, e.g., Advanced Tactical Ordnance Systems, LLC v. Real Action Paintball, Inc., 751 F.3d 796, 803 (7th Cir. 2010) (addressing the impact of a defendant's online activities upon the personal jurisdiction analysis and reiterating that, as with offline activities, the Court must focus upon the deliberate actions of the defendant within the State)), are instructive in considering whether the exercise of jurisdiction over Defendants in the instant action is appropriate under similar, if not identical facts. For example, courts in the Eleventh Circuit have routinely granted temporary restraining orders, preliminary injunctions and default judgments in online counterfeiting cases where no purchases of the counterfeit/infringing products were made, but the plaintiffs alleged and confirmed that each of the foreign defendants operated fully interactive commercial websites through which they advertised, promoted, offered for sale, and sold products bearing what the plaintiff determined to be counterfeit and infringing trademarks into the U.S., and in interstate commerce, in violation of the plaintiff's rights. See, e.g., Malletier, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 93072, at *3; Mycoskie v. 2016tomsshoesaleoutlet.us, No. 16-61523-CIV-GAYLES, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 95963, at *4 (S.D. Fla. July 22, 2016); Adidas AG v. 007adidasuk.com, No. 15-61275-CIV-GAYLES, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 179020, at *8 (S.D. Fla. 2015); Louis Vuitton Malletier, S.A. v. 2015shoplvhandbag.com, No. 15-62531-CIV-BLOOM, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 181477, at *11 (S.D. Fla. Dec. 18, 2015); Abercrombie & Fitch Trading Co. v. Abercrombieclassic.com, No. 15-62579-CIV-CMA, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 179041, at *5 (S.D. Fla. Dec. 11, 2015); Gucci Am., Inc. v. Gucci-Outlet.com, No. 15-62165-CIV-DPG, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 181483, at *3-4 (S.D. Fla. Nov. 9, 2015); Chanel, Inc. v. 2012leboyhandbag.com, No. 15-61986-CIV-WJZ, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 177989, at *3 (S.D. Fla. Oct. 13, 2015); Abercrombie & Fitch Trading Co. v. Abercrombieandfitchdk.com, No. 15-62068-CIV-BB, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 179117, at *5 (S.D. Fla. Oct. 7, 2015); Malletier v. 2015louisvuittons.com, No. 15-61973-CIV-BB, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 181452, at *11 (S.D. Fla. Sep. 29, 2015); Chanel, Inc. v. Chanelstore.com, No. 15-61156-CIV-CMA, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 179101, at *5 (S.D. Fla. August 31, 2015). Similarly, the Seventh Circuit, in Illinois v. Hemi Group LLC, held that it had personal jurisdiction over the foreign defendants because they operated a nationwide business model where they intentionally created and operated several commercial, interactive websites to offer products for sale and allow online orders from Illinois residents, specifically noting that the "[defendants] maintained commercial websites through which customers could purchase cigarettes, calculate their shipping charges using their zip codes, and create accounts," and as a result, the "[defendants] stood ready and willing to do business with Illinois residents." Illinois v. Hemi Group LLC, 622 F.3d 754, 756 (7th Cir. 2010); see also Monster Energy Co. v. Chen Wensheng, 136 F. Supp. 3d 897, 906 (N.D. Ill. 2015) (holding that defendants had "expressly aimed" their actions at the state, making specific personal jurisdiction proper even without a sale made to an Illinois resident, because in addition to intentionally creating and operating commercial, fully interactive AliExpress.com Internet stores through which consumers can purchase counterfeit Monster Energy Products, the defendants had affirmatively selected a shipping option to ship counterfeit products to the U.S., including to Illinois residents, and the plaintiffs' exhibits showed that the named defendants had specifically offered to sell particular counterfeit products to individuals with Illinois shipping addresses and provided PayPal account number for the buyer to make the payment for the item, and as a result, the defendants expressly elected to do business with the residents of all fifty states, including Illinois).

that Defendants conduct business within this District and the claims in this suit arise from Defendants' business dealings and transactions with consumers in Pennsylvania. See Zippo Mfg. Co. v. Zippo DOT Com, 952 F. Supp. 1119 (W.D. Pa. 1997).

2. Exercising Personal Jurisdiction Over Defendants Comports With Due Process

The assertion of personal jurisdiction over Defendants also comports with the Due Process Clause of the U.S. Constitution, as Defendants have “certain minimum contacts ... such that maintenance of th[is] suit does not offend ‘traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice.’” Calder v. Jones, 465 U.S. 783, 788 (1984) (quoting Milliken v. Meyer, 311 U.S. 457 (1940)).

This Court may exercise personal jurisdiction when the plaintiff can establish that the cause of action at issue arose from the defendant's activities within the forum state. Helicopteros Nacionales de Colombia, S.A. v. Hall, 466 U.S. at 414 (1984). The plaintiff initially bears the burden of proving a prima facie case, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the defendant's contacts with the forum state meet the “minimum contacts” test. Carteret Sav. Bank, F.A. v. Shushan, 954 F.2d 141, 146 (3d Cir. 1992). Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz, 471 U.S. 462, 475 (U.S. 1985); see Best Van Lines, Inc. v. Walker, 490 F.3d 239, 243 (2d. Cir. 2007) (“In the language of minimum contacts, when the defendants committed ‘their intentional, and allegedly tortious, actions expressly aimed at California, they must have reasonably anticipated being hailed into court there.’”) (internal quotations omitted); Here, the Defendants intentionally directed their activity towards the Pennsylvania market, thereby purposefully availing themselves of “the privilege of conducting activities within the forum State, thus invoking the benefits and protections of its laws.” See Mason Dec. ¶ 29. See Odell Dec. ¶ 2 and Composite Exhibit 1. Thus, the Plaintiff has made out a prima facie case, by a preponderance of the evidence that Defendants' contacts with the Pennsylvania meet the "minimum contacts" test.

Pennsylvania's long-arm statute provides that jurisdiction may be exercised "to the fullest extent allowed under the Constitution of the U.S. and may be based on the most minimum contact with this Commonwealth allowed under the Constitution of the U.S." 42 Pa. C. S. A. § 5322(b) (1981). Thus, because Pennsylvania's long-arm statute is coextensive with the dictates of the U.S. Constitution, the traditional two-step analysis is collapsed into a single inquiry: "whether the exercise of personal jurisdiction would conform with the Due Process Clause." Poole v. Sasson, 122 F. Supp. 2d 556, 558 (E. D. Pa. 2000); see also Renner v. Lanard Toys Limited, 33 F.3d 277, 279 (3d Cir. 1994) ("[T]his court's inquiry is solely whether the exercise of personal jurisdiction over the defendant would be constitutional."). Due process requires that the defendant have "minimum contacts" with the forum state. Remick v. Manfredy, 238 F.3d 248, 255 (3d Cir. 2001) (quoting International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310, 316, 66 S.Ct. 154, 90 L.Ed. 95 (1945)). "Minimum contacts must have a basis in 'some act by which the defendant purposefully avails itself of the privilege of conducting activities within the forum state, thus invoking the benefits and protections of its laws.'" Remick, 238 F.3d at 255 (quoting Asahi Metal Indus. Co., Ltd. v. Superior Court of California, 480 U.S. 102, 109, 107 S.Ct. 1026, 94 L.Ed.2d 92 (1987)).

Here, each of the Defendants has used an interactive web site for offering for sale and selling infringing products. This Court has personal jurisdiction over each Defendant based upon internet-based sales activity into the US and this judicial district. The seminal opinion in this regard is Zippo Mfg. Co., 952 F. Supp. at 1119. In Zippo, this court established a "sliding scale" analytical framework for internet-based personal jurisdiction cases based upon the "level of interactivity and commercial nature of the exchange of information that occurs on the Web site.”

952 F. Supp. at 1124. The court explained:

[T]he likelihood that personal jurisdiction can be constitutionally exercised is directly proportionate to the nature and quality of commercial activity that an entity conducts over the Internet. This sliding scale is consistent with well-developed personal jurisdiction principles. At one end of the spectrum are situations where a defendant clearly does business over the Internet. If the defendant enters into contracts with residents of a foreign jurisdiction that involve the knowing and repeated transmission of computer files over the Internet, personal jurisdiction is proper. At the opposite end are situations where a defendant has simply posted information on an Internet Web site which is accessible to users in foreign jurisdictions. A passive Web site that does little more than make information available to those who are interested in it is not grounds for the exercise personal jurisdiction. The middle ground is occupied by interactive Web sites where a user can exchange information with the host computer. In these cases, the exercise of jurisdiction is determined by examining the level of interactivity and commercial nature of the exchange of information that occurs on the Web site.

Id.

The Third Circuit endorsed this general framework in Toys “R” Us, Inc. v. Step Two, S.A., 318 F.3d 446 (3rd Cir. 2003), but clarified that the plaintiff must also provide evidence of “the intentional nature of the defendant’s conduct vis-a-vis the forum state.” Id. at 452. In other words, “there must be some evidence that the defendant ‘purposefully availed’ itself of conducting activity in the forum state, by directly targeting its website to the state, knowingly interacting with residents of the forum state via its website, or through sufficient other related contacts.” Id. at 454. See also Mellon Bank (East) PSFS, N.A. v. DiVeronica Bros., Inc., 983 F.2d 551, 556 (3d Cir. 1993) (citing Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz, 471 U.S. 462, 477 (1985))

In the wake of Zippo and Toys “R” Us, most courts have concluded that a defendant that intentionally conducts business transactions over an interactive website with customers in the forum state has purposefully directed itself of the laws of that forum. In Square D, for example, the defendant's website contained links providing "a [telephone] number and e-mail address for the purpose of placing an order," information concerning product warranties, and a link that permitted a potential purchaser to "submit a form specifying the manufacturer, catalog number, and quantity of the product to be purchased, as well as the purchaser's company name, phone, fax and e-mail." Square D Co. v. Scott Elec. Co., No. 06-459, 2008 WL 4462298, at *3 (W.D. Pa. Sept. 30, 2008). There was also a space on the form for additional "comments" concerning a proposed transaction. Id. Although a customer could not directly order products using only the website, customers could "commence the ordering process" by "provid[ing] much of the same type of information that would be required for an order (e.g., manufacturer, quantity, catalog number, contact information)." Id. at *8, Indeed, the court noted that the website had produced "twenty-four (24) Pennsylvania customers and a total of $10,238.25 in sales" for the defendant. Id. at *9. Although this amount represented "less than 1%" of the defendant's total sales, the Court concluded that it was sufficient to establish personal jurisdiction in the state of Pennsylvania. Id. As explained by the court:

The website was more than a mere advertisement; rather, it was an interactive site that allowed customers to take the first step in an ordering process that could be completed with one phone call or e-mail. By knowingly selling and shipping a product that is at issue in this litigation to a customer [in] Pennsylvania, the Moving Defendants purposefully availed themselves of the laws and privileges of this forum. Id. at *11.

Willyoung v. Colorado Custom Hardware, Inc. is similarly instructive. Willyoung v. Colorado Custom Hardware, Inc., 2009 WL 3183061 (W. D. Pa. Sept. 30, 2009). In Willyoung, the website at issue allowed visitors to "request a catalog by supplying certain information according to the website prompts, contact the company directly by e-mail, subscribe to [defendant's] on-line newsletter, and search, view, and select products for on-line purchase via a 'shopping cart.'" Id. at *12. Over a two-year period, Pennsylvania customers had utilized the website to place 211 orders amounting to $41,566.05 in sales. Id. Based on the foregoing, the court concluded that the defendant had purposefully availed itself of the privilege of conducting business in the state of Pennsylvania by “intentionally and repeatedly engag[ing] in internet-based sales of its products to Pennsylvania residents via its website.” Id. at *13. Other courts have frequently reached the same conclusion. See also Gentex Corp. v. Abbott, 978 F. Supp. 2d 391, 398 (M.D. Pa. 2013) (finding personal jurisdiction where non-resident defendant’s interactive website was used by Pennsylvania residents to place at least 17 orders over a three-year period); TRE Services, Inc. v. U.S. Bellows, Inc., 2012 WL 2872830, *4–5 (W.D. Pa. July 12, 2012) (finding personal jurisdiction based on defendant’s commercially interactive website that accepted orders from Pennsylvania); Gourmet Video, Inc. v. Alpha Blue Archives, Inc., 2008 WL 4755350, *3 (D.N.J. Oct. 29, 2008) (“Personal jurisdiction is properly exercised over a defendant using the Internet to conduct business in the forum state.”); L’Athene, Inc. v. EarthSpring LLC, 570 F. Supp. 588, 593–94 (D. Del. 2008) (defendants purposely availed themselves of doing business in state of Delaware where they operated a website accessible in Delaware, received orders and payments from customers in Delaware, and shipped their products to Delaware). Thus, the Defendants in this case have all offered interactive web sites for viewing, ordering, and paying for the Counterfeit Goods and have purposefully availed themselves of the opportunity to conduct business with Pennsylvania citizens with their respective Merchant Storefronts.

Further there is sufficient evidence to establish the type of “intentional interaction with the forum state” required by the Third Circuit for the exercise of personal jurisdiction. See Toys “R” Us, 318 F.3d at 451–52 (requiring evidence that the defendant has “intentionally interact[ed] with the forum state). See, e.g., Square D., 2008 WL 4462298 at *9 n. 10

(concluding that an amount equal to less than 1% of overall sales was sufficient to establish minimum contacts); Zippo, 952 F.Supp. at 1127 (exercising personal jurisdiction despite that only 2% of the defendant’s customers were Pennsylvania residents); L’Athene, 570 F. Supp. 2d at 593–94 (exercising personal jurisdiction despite that sales to the forum state constituted less than 1% of defendants’ total annual sales based on units sold). As noted in Zippo, “[t]he Supreme Court has made clear that even a single contact can be sufficient.” Zippo, 952 F. Supp. at 1127 (citing McGee v. Int’l Life Ins. Co., 355 U.S. 220, 223, 78 S.Ct. 199, 2 L. Ed. 2d 223 (1957)); see also Square D., 2008 WL 4462298 at *9 n. 10 (noting that, while an argument based on a minute number of overall sales might be “valid in the context of general jurisdiction, in the context of specific jurisdiction it is evidence that supports Plaintiff’s argument that the Moving Defendants purposefully availed themselves of the laws and privileges of Pennsylvania by selling and shipping products to residents of the Commonwealth.”).

Since the Defendants have purposefully availed themselves of the opportunity to conduct business with Pennsylvania citizens through their interactive websites, the Court must next consider whether this litigation “arise[s] out of and relate[s] to” those sales. D’Jamoos, 566 F.3d at 102. Here, the lawsuit directly arises out of the Defendants’ respective sales of Infringing Products to Pennsylvania residents through their interactive websites. See, e.g., Willyoung, 2009 WL 3183061 at *13 (“The second part of our jurisdictional inquiry is also easily satisfied because this litigation arises out of and relates to BGM’s use of its web site to conduct internet-based sales of its merchandise to Pennsylvania residents.”) (internal quotation marks omitted); Square D., 2008 WL 4462298 at *11 (finding the relatedness requirement satisfied where “at least one” of the products sold to a Pennsylvania resident by the defendant was from the allegedly infringing line of products at issue in the litigation). All of the Infringing Products which are the subject of this lawsuit were sold into Pennsylvania. Therefore, the “arise[s] out of and relate[s] to” test is easily met here.

Finally, the Court must consider whether the exercise of jurisdiction would otherwise comport with “traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice.” O’Connor v Sandy Lane Hotel Co., Ltd, 496 F.3d 312, 316 (3rd Cir. 2007)(quoting Int’l Shoe, 326 U.S. at 316). Because the existence of minimum contacts makes jurisdiction presumptively constitutional, the defendant at step three of the specific-jurisdiction-inquiry process “must present a compelling case that the presence of some other considerations would render jurisdiction unreasonable.” Id. (quoting Burger King, 471 U.S. at 477). The burden upon the defendant at this stage of the inquiry is considerable. See Pennzoil Prods. Co. v. Colelli & Assocs., Inc., 149 F.3d 197, 207 (3rd Cir. 1998) (noting that if minimum contacts are present, then jurisdiction will be unreasonable only in “rare cases”); Grand Entm’t Group, Ltd., v. Star Media Sales, Inc., 988 F.2d 476, 483 (3rd Cir.1993) (“The burden on a defendant who wishes to show an absence of fairness or lack of substantial justice is heavy.”). As the Third Circuit has observed:

The Supreme Court has identified several factors that courts should consider when balancing jurisdictional reasonableness. Among them are the burden on the defendant, the forum State’s interest in adjudicating the dispute, the plaintiff’s interest in obtaining convenient and effective relief, the interstate [and international] judicial system’s interest in obtaining the most efficient resolution of controversies, and [t]he procedural and substantive interests of other nations.

O’Connor, 496 F.3d at 324 (internal quotations omitted).

Here, the Plaintiff’s interest in obtaining convenient and effective relief in the forum of its choice and Pennsylvania’s interest in protecting its citizens from the sale of infringing goods within its borders are factors that weigh heavily in finding personal jurisdiction of the Defendants. See Square D, 2008 WL 4462298 at *12 (concluding that jurisdiction should be exercised in Pennsylvania “because the counterfeit goods in question potentially pose a danger to the public and were sold to residents of this Commonwealth.”); Zippo, 952 F.Supp. at 1127 (noting Pennsylvania’s strong interest in resolving trademark infringement claims implicating its citizens and giving “due regard to the Plaintiff’s choice to seek relief in Pennsylvania”). As the court noted in Zippo, “[i]f [the defendant] had not wanted to be amenable to jurisdiction in Pennsylvania, the solution would have been simple—it could have chosen not to sell its [products] to Pennsylvania residents.” Id. at 1126–27.

Accordingly, Plaintiff respectfully submits that this Court has personal jurisdiction over Defendants in this action.

B. PLAINTIFF IS ENTITLED TO AN EX PARTE TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER AND A PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

An ex parte order is essential in this case to prevent immediate and irreparable injury to Plaintiff. Rule 65(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provides, in pertinent part, that a temporary restraining order may be granted without written or oral notice to the opposing party or that party's counsel where “it clearly appears from the specific facts shown by affidavit . . . that immediate and irreparable injury, loss or damage will result to the applicant before the adverse party or that party's attorney can be heard in opposition.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 65(b). Further, this court has inherent power to grant an ex parte restraining order. See Link v. Wabush R. R., 370 U.S. 626, 630 – 31 (1962) (“Inherent powers are governed by the ‘control necessarily vested in courts to manage their own affairs as to achieve the orderly and expeditious disposition of cases.’ (citation omitted)”). Indeed, the Supreme Court has indicated that federal courts have broad inherent powers to accomplish justice. See Chambers v. Nasco, Inc., 501 U.S. 32, 44 (1991).

Defendants herein fraudulently promote, advertise, sell, and offer for sale goods infringing Plaintiff's Mark and Trade Dress, via their fully interactive, commercial Internet e-commerce stores using the Seller IDs. Specifically, Defendants wrongfully use infringements of Plaintiff's Mark and Trade Dress to increase traffic to their illegal operations. By their actions, Defendants are passing off Defendants' Infringing Products as Plaintiff's genuine products and creating a false association in the minds of consumers between Defendants and Plaintiff. The entry of a temporary restraining order would serve to immediately stop Defendants from benefiting from their wrongful use of Plaintiff's intellectual property at issue and preserve the status quo until such time as a hearing can be held. See Dell Inc. v. BelgiumDomains, LLC, Case No. 07-22674 2007 WL 6862341, at *2 (S.D Fla. Nov. 21, 2007) (finding ex parte relief more compelling where Defendants' scheme "is in electronic form and subject to quick, easy, untraceable destruction by Defendants.")

Absent a temporary restraining order without notice, Defendants can and, based upon Plaintiff's counsel's past experience, will significantly alter the status quo before the Court can determine the parties' respective rights. In particular, the Seller IDs at issue are under the Defendants' complete control. Thus, Defendants have the ability to modify e-commerce store data and content, redirect consumer traffic to other seller identification names, change payment accounts, and transfer assets. Ference Dec., ¶ 6. Such modifications can happen in a short period of time after Defendants are provided with notice of this action. Id. Defendants can also easily electronically transfer and secret the funds sought to be restrained if they obtain advance notice of Plaintiff's Application for a Temporary Restraining Order and thereby thwart the Court's ability to grant meaningful relief and can completely erase the status quo. Id. As Defendants engage in illegal infringing activities, Plaintiff has no reason to believe Defendants will make their assets available for recovery pursuant to an account of profits or will adhere to the authority of this Court any more than they have adhered to the Lanham Act.

“Courts in other circuits dealing with foreign on-line counterfeiters have not hesitated to exercise [their] authority [to grant an ex parte order] in infringement cases in which there is a danger the defendants will destroy, conceal, or transfer counterfeit goods.” Moose Toys Pty, Ltd. v. Thriftway Hylan Blvd. Drug Corp., No. 15- cv-4483-DLI/MDG, 2015 U.S. Dist.. LEXIS 105912, at *8 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 6, 2015). Moreover, federal courts have long recognized that civil actions against counterfeiters - whose very business is built around the deliberate misappropriation of rights and property belonging to others - present special challenges that justify proceeding on an ex parte basis. See Columbia Pictures Indus., Inc. v. Jasso, 927 F. Supp. 1075, 1077 (N.D. Ill. 1996) (observing that “proceedings against those who deliberately traffic in infringing merchandise are often useless if notice is given to the infringers”); Time Warner Entertainment Co., L.P. v. Does, 876 F. Supp. 407, 410-11 (E.D.N.Y. 1994).

This Court should prevent an injustice from occurring by issuing an ex parte temporary restraining order which precludes Defendants from continuing to display their infringing content via the Internet e-commerce stores or modifying or deleting any related content or data. Only such an order will prevent ongoing irreparable harm and maintain the status quo. The immediate and irreparable harm to Plaintiff’s business and reputation -- as well as to the goodwill associated with Plaintiff’s Mark and Trade Dress -- in denying its Application for an ex parte temporary restraining order, greatly outweighs the harm to Defendants’ interests in continuing to offer for sale and sell Infringing Products. Many courts have granted an ex parte temporary restraining order in situations where the harm to plaintiffs far outweighed the harm to defendants.<sup>11</sup>

The Third Circuit holds that a district court must evaluate the following four factors in deciding whether preliminary injunctive relief is appropriately entered: (1) the extent to which the moving party will suffer irreparable harm without injunctive relief; (2) the likelihood that the moving party will succeed on the merits; (3) the extent to which the nonmoving party will suffer irreparable harm if the injunction is issued; and (4) the public interest. AT&T Co. v. Winback and Conserve Program, Inc., 42 F.3d 1421, 1427 (3d Cir. 1994). Courts routinely grant preliminary injunctive relief when a party's trademark rights are threatened by the sale of counterfeit versions of its products based on a trademark holder's inability "to control the quality of the goods manufactured and sold under the holder's trademark." El Greco Leather Prods. Co. v. Shoe World, Inc., 806 F.2d 392, 395 (2d Cir. 1986). As shown below, Plaintiff readily meets the criteria for obtaining a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction. Louis Vuitton Malletier v. Burlington Coat Factory Warehouse Corp., 426 F.3d 532, 537 (2d Cir. 2005) (quoting Federal Express Corp. v. Federal Espresso, Inc., 201 F.3d 168, 173 (2d Cir. 2000)). The "standards which govern consideration of an application for a temporary restraining order are the same standards as those which govern a preliminary injunction." Local 1814, Int'l Longshoremen's Ass'n v. N.Y. Shipping Ass'n, Inc., 965 F.2d 1224, 1228 (2d Cir. 1992). See also Hall v. Johnson, 599 F.Supp.2d 1, 6 n. 2 (D.D.C. 2009); accord Sterling Commercial Credit-Michigan, LLC v. Phoenix Industries I, LLC, 762 F.Supp.2d 8 (D.D.C. 2011); Coalition for Parity, Inc. v. Sebelius, 709 F.Supp.2d 6 (D.D.C. 2010). As detailed below, Plaintiff has met the standard for a preliminary injunction, and accordingly, a temporary restraining order should also issue against Defendants.

1. Plaintiff Will Suffer Irreparable Harm in The Absence of an Injunction Leaving It With No Adequate Remedy at Law

Defendants' infringing activities must be stopped immediately in order to prevent any further harm to Plaintiff. Not only does Plaintiff stand to suffer lost profits as a result of Defendants' competing substandard Infringing Products, but it destroys the inherent value of Plaintiff's Marks, it impairs Plaintiff's reputation for providing quality products, it dilutes Plaintiff's brand and goodwill and it negatively affects Plaintiff's relationships with its current customers and its ability to attract new customers. See Mason Dec., ¶¶ 29 - 31. While courts may no longer presume irreparable harm upon a finding of infringement, Salinger v. Colting, 607 F.3d 68, 82 (2d Cir. 2010), "[i]rreparable harm exists in a trademark case when the party seeking the injunction shows that it will lose control over the reputation of its trademark . . . because loss of control over one's reputation is neither 'calculable nor precisely compensable.'" Pappan Enters., Inc. v. Hardee's Food Sys., Inc., 143 F.3d 800, 805 (3d Cir.1998). Lack of control over one's mark "creates the potential for damage to ... reputation[, which] constitutes irreparable injury for the purpose of granting a preliminary injunction in a trademark case." Opticians Ass'n of Am. v. Indep. Opticians of Am., 920 F.2d 187, 196 (3d Cir.1990). Thus, "trademark infringement amounts to irreparable injury as a matter of law." S & R Corp. v. Jiffy Lube Int'l, Inc., 968 F.2d 371, 378 (3d Cir.1992); see also Times Mirror Magazines, Inc. v. Las Vegas Sports News, L.L.C., 212 F.3d 157, 169 (3d Cir.2000) ("potential damage to ... reputation or goodwill or likely confusion between parties' marks" is irreparable injury). "[O]nce the likelihood of confusion caused by trademark infringement has been established, the inescapable conclusion is that there was also irreparable injury." Pappan, 143 F.3d at 805. See also U.S. Polo Ass'n, Inc. v. PRL USA Holdings, Inc., 800 F.Supp.2d 515, 540 (S.D.N.Y. 2011); see also NYPHoldings v. New York Post Pub. Inc., 63 F. Supp. 3d 328, 341 (S.D.N.Y. 2014) ("[A]lthough irreparable harm may not be presumed upon a showing of a likelihood of success, irreparable harm exists in a trademark case when the party seeking the injunction shows that it will lose control over the reputation of its trademark . . . Thus, it will often be the case that a party's demonstration of a likelihood of success on a trademark claim will also show a threat of irreparable harm.” (citing eBay, Inc. v. MercExchange, LLC, 547 U.S. 388, 393 (2006); Salinger, 607 F.3d at 80)). See: Bill Blass, Ltd. v. SAZ Corp., 751 F.2d 152, 224 U.S.P.Q. (BNA) 753 (3d Cir. 1984). (“Harm is irreparable when it cannot be compensated adequately in money damages.”). See also S & R Corp. v. Jiffy Lube Int'l, Inc., 968 F.2d 371, 378 (3d Cir.1992) (Grounds for irreparable injury include loss of control of reputation, loss of trade, and loss of goodwill.)

Moreover, Defendants’ infringing activities deny Plaintiff its fundamental right to control the quality of the goods sold under its marks. See Zino Davidoff SA v. CVS Corp., 571 F.3d 238, 243 (2d Cir. 2009) (affirming district court’s grant of preliminary injunction) (quoting El Greco Leather Products Co. v. Shoe World, Inc., 806 F.2d 392, 395 (2d Cir. 1986, cert. denied, 484 U.S. 817 (1987) (“[o]ne of the most valuable and important protections afforded by the Lanham Act is the right to control the quality of the goods manufactured and sold under the holder’s trademark.”). Defendants are offering their substandard Infringing Products, often in wholesale quantities, at significantly below market prices with which Plaintiff cannot compete given the high-quality materials and construction necessary to manufacture the genuine products. See Erdely Dec., ¶¶ 19 - 23 and Groupe SEB USA v. Euro-Pro Operating LLC, 774 F.3d 192 (3d Cir. 2014) (holding that irreparable harm is caused to a trademark owner who cannot control the quality of their products because “a higher incidence of substantial sales of counterfeit goods, which are invariably non-conforming and inferior” would “harm [Plaintiff’s] reputation and diminish the value of its trademark.”); see also Mint, Inc. v. Iddi Amad, No. 10-cv-9395-SAS, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 49813, at *9, n.23 (S.D.N.Y. May 9, 2011) (“the loss of pricing power resulting from the sale of inexpensive ‘knock-offs’ is, by its very nature, irreparable”) (citing Abbott Labs. v. Sandoz, Inc., 544 F.3d 1341, 1362 (Fed. Cir. 2008) (citing Purdue Pharma L.P. v. Boehringer Ingelheim GmbH, 237 F.3d 1359, 1368 (Fed. Cir. 2001) (likelihood of price erosion and loss of market position are evidence of irreparable harm); Polymer Techs., Inc. v. Bridwell, 103 F.3d 970, 975-76 (Fed. Cir. 1996) (loss of market opportunities cannot be quantified or adequately compensated and is evidence of irreparable harm)).

Also, because Defendants’ substandard Infringing Products are virtually indistinguishable from Plaintiff’s genuine products, not only could any injury that results from use of Defendants’ substandard Infringing Products be attributed to Plaintiff (See Mason Dec., ¶ 20), thereby causing irreparable harm to Plaintiff in the form of unquantifiable lost sales, loss of goodwill and loss of control of its reputation with authorized licensees, retailers and consumers, but Plaintiff potentially could be exposed to legal liability for any such injury, which is of particular importance given the nature of the genuine products. Id. Thus, this factor weighs heavily in Plaintiff’s favor.

2. Plaintiff is Likely to Prevail on The Merits of its Lanham Act Claims

Plaintiff asserts two causes of action under the Lanham Act. Count I of the Complaint is for Federal Unfair Competition under Section 43(a). Count II of the Complaint asserts Federal trademark infringement and counterfeiting. Plaintiff is likely to prevail on both Lanham Act claims.

To prevail on a false designation of origin claim pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 1125(a) of the Lanham Act, a plaintiff must show: (1) that defendants used a false designation of origin; (2) that the use of the false designation of origin occurred in interstate commerce in connection with goods or services; (3) that the false designation is likely to cause confusion, mistake or deception as to the origin, sponsorship or approval of Plaintiff's goods by another person; and (4) that Plaintiff has been or is likely to be damaged as a result. See AT&T Co. v. Winback & Conserve Program, Inc., 42 F.3d 1421, 1428 (3d Cir. 1994). False designation of origin claims often take one of two forms: "passing off" claims and "reverse passing off" claims. The Supreme Court distinguished the two claims as follows: "Passing off (or palming off, as it is sometimes called) occurs when a producer misrepresents his own goods or services as someone else's. Reverse passing off, as its name implies, is the opposite: The producer misrepresents someone else's goods or services as his own." Dastar Corp. v. Twentieth Century Fox Film Corp., 539 U.S. 23, 28 n. 1 (2003) (citations omitted).

In order to establish a likelihood of success on trademark counterfeiting and infringement claims, a plaintiff must show: (1) that its marks are valid and entitled to protection, and (2) that defendants' use of plaintiff's marks is likely to cause confusion. In order for a party to prevail on a claim of trademark or service mark infringement under Section 1114 and the common law, the party must establish that (1) the mark is valid and legally protectable, (2) the mark is owned by the plaintiff and (3) use of the same mark by the defendant is likely to create confusion among the relevant consumers.

a. Defendants' Use of Plaintiff's Photographs

The Lanham Act, including Section 43(a), was enacted in 1946. The very first case to consider whether a defendant's use of a plaintiff's photograph in defendant's advertising was a Section 43(a) violation was L'Aiglon Apparel, Inc. v. Lana Lobell, Inc., 214 F.2d 649 (3d Cir.

1954). The Third Circuit reversed a district court's grant of a defendant's motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, summarizing the case as follows:

Plaintiff, a manufacturer, and defendant, a retailer, are both members of the dress industry, selling dresses in commerce. Each is incorporated in Pennsylvania. Alleging a fraudulent and injurious use of a picture of plaintiff's dress in defendant's advertising, the plaintiff brought this action under the Lanham trademark Act of 1946 for damages and injunctive relief. ...

* * * *

On its face Section 43(a) seems rather clearly to cover the present claim. It provides in relevant part that "Any person who shall * * * use in connection with any goods * * * any false description or representation, including words or other symbols tending falsely to describe or represent the same, and shall cause such goods * * * to enter into commerce, * * * shall be liable to a civil action by any person * * * who believes that he is or is likely to be damaged by the use of any such false description or representation." Section 39 gives federal district courts jurisdiction of causes arising under this statute regardless of the amount in controversy or the citizenship of the litigants.

The present complaint alleges that plaintiff created and alone sold to the retail trade throughout the country a certain distinctively styled dress. To advertise this dress plaintiff published pictures of it, together with its price, $17.95, in advertisements in leading newspapers and in some two million individual mailing pieces distributed through retailers. In this way the picture and price of this dress became associated in the minds of many readers and identified as plaintiff's $17.95 dress.

It is further alleged that, at about the same time, defendant was offering for sale through mail order and otherwise in interstate commerce a dress which in fact was much inferior to plaintiff's in quality and notably different in appearance. In this connection defendant published under its name in a magazine of national circulation a display advertisement worded and designed to promote the mail order sale of its dress at a stated price of $6.95, but showing as the most prominent feature of the advertisement an actual photographic reproduction of plaintiff's dress, thus fraudulently represented as the article defendant was selling for $6.95. Plaintiff alleges that this misrepresentation caused some trade to be diverted from plaintiff to defendant and caused other trade to be lost by plaintiff as a result of the mistaken impression conveyed to those familiar with the advertising of both parties that plaintiff was offering for $17.95 a dress worth only $6.95.

In relation to the language of Section 43(a) this complaint states about as plain a use of a false representation in the description of goods sold in commerce as could be imagined.

L'Aiglon Apparel, Inc. v. Lana Lobell, Inc., 214 F.2d 649, 650 (3d Cir. 1954) (emphasis added).

It seems that some things never change.

In a 1967 case – pre-Internet – the plaintiffs created, designed, engineered and sold a novelty signal light. The defendant caused to be copied and manufactured in Hong Kong a “Chinese” copy of plaintiff’s novelty signal light. In granting a preliminary injunction, the Court stated:

This unfair competition is also sufficient to sustain a cause of action cognizable under Section 43(a) of the Lanham Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C.A. § 1125(a). This Section provides, in pertinent part, that:

"Any person who shall affix * * * or use in connection with any goods or services, or any container * * * for goods, a false designation or origin, or any false description or representation, including any words or other symbols tending falsely to describe or represent the same, and shall cause such goods or services to enter into commerce, and any person who shall with knowledge of the falsity of such designation of origin or description or representation cause or procure the same to be transported or used in commerce or deliver the same to any carrier to be transported or used, shall be liable to a civil action * * * by any person who believes that he is or is likely to be damaged by the use of any such false description or representation."

Plaintiffs and defendant are in competition for the signal light market. Suffice it to say that plaintiffs' light appears to be of a higher quality than defendant's.

The application of Section 43(a) of the Lanham Act to this type of activity has been firmly established. In a series of cases, the courts have held that defendant may not use a photograph of plaintiff's product to advertise and sell its own less expensive and inferior product.<sup>12</sup> Such action is clearly unfair competition within the meaning of the statute and may be enjoined under the proper circumstances.

A preliminary injunction has issued even where a defendant has altered the photograph of a plaintiff's product in order to put defendant's trade name or

Co., supra.* In the latter case, Judge Van Pelt Bryan stated the rationale for these decisions:

"This section [Lanham Act § 43(a)] applies where a defendant advertises its inferior and much cheaper product by featuring a photographic reproduction of plaintiff's product, thus creates the impression that his product is precisely the same as plaintiffs' and causes trade to be diverted from plaintiff to himself and other trade to be lost." In cases where a defendant has used the plaintiff's photograph in defendant's advertising, courts do not engage in a rigorous factor-by-factor analysis and simply conclude there has been a violation of Section 43(a). See Bangor Punta Operation v. Universal Marine Co., 543 F.2d 1107 (5th Cir. 1976) ("The plaintiff contends that the misappropriation of its advertising material by defendants results in the violation of § 43(a) of the Lanham Act. This, in itself, is a false description or representation, actionable under the Lanham Act."); 1 Federal Unfair Competition: Lanham Act 43(a) § 6:12 (Dec. 2018 Update) ("Generally stated, using one product or its facsimile such as a still photograph or motion picture, or otherwise in an advertisement or promotion, while actually delivering another product even though similar in quality or appearance, has been held actionable under Section 43(a)." (citations omitted).)

b. Defendants' Use of Plaintiff's Trade Dress

As demonstrated in Composite Exhibit 1, Defendants have used Plaintiff's Trade Dress in Defendants' listings. Such conduct is a clear violation of Section 43(a) of the Lanham Act.

To establish trade dress infringement under the Lanham Act, a plaintiff must prove that "(1) the allegedly infringing design is non-functional; (2) the design is inherently distinctive or has acquired secondary meaning; and (3) consumers are likely to confuse the source of the plaintiff's product with that of the defendant's product." Buzz Bee Toys, Inc. v. Swimways Corp., 20 F. Supp. 3d 483, 496 (D.N.J. 2014).

Looking at the evidence, as may be seen by comparing Composite Exhibit 1 and Complaint Exhibit 1, Defendants Infringing Products bearing, offered for sale, and sold using Plaintiff's Trade Dress have been widely advertised and offered for sale throughout the United States via at least one fully interactive Internet marketplace. See Taylor Dec. The Infringing Products are virtually identical in appearance to Plaintiff's genuine goods, however they are likely inferior in quality. See Mason Dec. ¶¶ 18 - 21, Accordingly, Defendants' activities are likely to cause confusion in the trade and among the general public as to at least the origin or sponsorship of their Infringing Products. Id. Further, Defendants have used in connection with their advertisement, offer for sale, and sale of their Infringing Products, false designations of origin and false descriptions and representations, including words or other symbols and trade dress, which tend to falsely describe or represent such goods and have caused such goods to enter into with full knowledge of the falsity of such designations of origin and such descriptions and representations, all to Plaintiff's detriment. Id. at ¶¶ 27 – 31.

All three elements for trade dress infringement are easily met in this case. First, the design elements that Plaintiff's Product incorporates all the non-functional design elements of the Plaintiff's Product. See Mason Dec.

Trade dress can be distinctive in one of two ways: "First, [it] is inherently distinctive if [its] intrinsic nature serves to identify a particular source. . . . Second, a mark has acquired distinctiveness, even if it is not inherently distinctive, if it has developed secondary meaning . . . ." Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Samara Bros., Inc., 529 U.S. 205, 210-11, 120 S. Ct. 1339, 146 L. Ed. 2d 182 (2000) [**26] (citations omitted). Secondary meaning "occurs when, in the minds of the public, the primary significance of a [trade dress] is to identify the source of the product rather than the product itself." Id. at 211; see also Ideal Toy Corp. v. Plawner Toy Mfg. Corp., 685 F.2d 78, 82 (3d Cir. 1982) ("When the primary significance of the trade dress to a consumer is in designating not the product but its producer, the trade dress has acquired secondary meaning"). Id. at 496.

Secondary meaning does not require proof that consumers know the name of the company that owns the trademark. It requires only that customers associate the word or symbol with a single, albeit anonymous, commercial source." 2 McCarthy on Trademarks and Unfair Competition § 15:1 (4th ed.). The standard "does not mean that the buyer knows the identity of that 'single source' in the sense that he knows the corporate name of the producer or seller. In fact, few buyers know, or care about, the corporate identity of the seller of a trademarked product." Id. § 15:

Thus, as to the second element of trade dress infringement (inherent distinctiveness or acquired secondary meaning), there is no question that Plaintiff's Trade Dress functions as a source identifier for Plaintiff. See Mason Dec., ¶¶ 11 - 12.

Finally, there is both a likelihood of confusion caused by the Defendants' using Plaintiff's distinct trade dress and there is actual confusion. See Mason Dec., ¶¶ 18 - 20. To determine whether there is a likelihood of confusion, the court must employ the "Lapp" factors. Buzz Bee Toys, Inc., 20 F. Supp. 3d at 489.<sup>13</sup>

Therefore, all three elements are met for trade dress infringement.

c. Defendant's Counterfeiting and Infringement of Plaintiff's Registered Trademark

In order to establish a likelihood of success on trademark infringement and counterfeiting claims, a plaintiff must show: (1) that its marks are valid and entitled to protection, and (2) that defendants' use of plaintiff's marks is likely to cause confusion. In order for a party to prevail on a claim of trademark or service mark infringement under Section 1114 and the common law, the party must establish that (1) the mark is valid and legally protectable, (2) the mark is owned by the plaintiff and (3) use of the same mark by the defendant is likely to create confusion among the relevant consumers. See, e.g., Otokoyama Co. Ltd v. Wine of Japan Import, Inc., 175 F.3d 266, 270 (2d Cir. 1999). See also Fisons Horticulture, Inc. v. Vigoro Indus., Inc., 30 F.3d 466, 472 (3d Cir.1994); Ford Motor Co. v. Summit Motor Prods. Inc., 930 F.2d 277, 291 (3d Cir.), cert. denied, 502 U.S. 939, 112 S.Ct. 373, 116 L.Ed.2d 324 (1991).

As a preliminary matter, the U.S. Trademark Registration certificate submitted in conjunction with this application provide prima facie evidence of both the validity of Plaintiff's FrogLog® mark, as well as Plaintiff's ownership of the same. See Mason Dec., ¶¶ 8- 10; see also 15 U.S.C. § 1057(b). ("A certificate of registration of a mark upon the principal register...shall be prima facie evidence of the validity of the registered mark and of the registration of the mark, of the owner's ownership of the mark....").

In the Third Circuit, likelihood of confusion is assessed by the so-called Lapp factors first enunciated in Scott Paper Co. v. Scott's Liquid Gold, Inc., 589 F.2d 1225, 1229 (3d Cir. 1978). Here, each of the ten, non-exhaustive factors used to analyze whether there is likelihood of confusion favor Plaintiff: (1) the strength of Plaintiff's Marks; (2) the degree of similarity between the Plaintiff's Marks and Defendants' marks; (3) the price of the goods and other factors indicative of the care and attention expected of consumers when making a purchase; (4) the length of time the defendant has used the mark without evidence of actual confusion; (5) the intent of the defendant in adopting the mark; (6) actual confusion; (7) the similarity of the channels of trade; (8) the extent to which the targets of the parties' sales efforts are similar; (9) the relationship of the goods in the minds of consumers; and (10) other factors suggesting that consumers might expect the trademark owner to manufacture both products, or manufacture a product in the defendant's market.

In order for a party to prevail on a claim of counterfeiting and trademark infringement under Lanham Act Section 1114,<sup>14</sup> the party must establish that (1) the mark is valid and legally protectable, (2) the mark is owned by the plaintiff and (3) use of the same mark by the defendant is likely to create confusion among the relevant consumers. See, e.g., Otokoyama Co. Ltd v. Wine of Japan Import, Inc., 175 F.3d 266, 270 (2d Cir. 1999). See also Fisons Horticulture, Inc. v. Vigoro Indus., Inc., 30 F.3d 466, 472 (3d Cir.1994); Ford Motor Co. v. Summit Motor Prods.

<sup>14</sup> Like other courts, the Third Circuit Court of Appeals also recognize another type of passing off that violates Section 43(a) of the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1125(a) — where the objectionable conduct is the defendant's passing off that lures potential customers away from the plaintiff but where the customers recognize the passing off before actually transacting business with the defendant. Checkpoint Sys., Inc. v. Check Point Software Techs., Inc., 269 F.3d 270, 294–95 (3d Cir. 2001). This particular type of passing off, which creates what is known as “initial interest confusion,” is prohibited by the Lanham Act because without such protection, “an infringer could use an established mark to create confusion as to a product's source thereby receiving a ‘free ride on the goodwill’ of the established mark.” Id.

Inc., 930 F.2d 277, 291 (3d Cir.), cert. denied, 502 U.S. 939, 112 S.Ct. 373, 116 L.Ed.2d 324 (1991). Plaintiff's evidence submitted herewith satisfies all three requirements.

The first two elements of Plaintiff's trademark infringement claim are easily met. Plaintiff's Mark is inherently distinctive. Moreover, Defendants have never had the right or authority to use the Plaintiff's Mark. Mason Dec. ¶ 23.

Turning to the third element of confusion, the Third Circuit uses a ten-factor test, the so-called Lapp factors, in determining the third element, likelihood of confusion. Scott Paper Co. v. Scott's Liquid Gold, Inc., 589 F.2d 1225, 1229 (3d Cir. 1978). These factors are: (1) the strength of Plaintiff's Marks; (2) the degree of similarity between the Plaintiff's Marks and Defendants' marks; (3) the price of the goods and other factors indicative of the care and attention expected of consumers when making a purchase; (4) the length of time the defendant has used the mark without evidence of actual confusion; (5) the intent of the defendant in adopting the mark; (6) actual confusion; (7) the similarity of the channels of trade; (8) the extent to which the targets of the parties' sales efforts are similar; (9) the relationship of the goods in the minds of consumers; and (10) other factors suggesting that consumers might expect the trademark owner to manufacture both products, or manufacture a product in the defendant's market. These ten factors are to be weighed and no single factor is dispositive. Id.

1. Plaintiff's Mark is Strong and Distinctive

In determining the strength of a mark, the Third Circuit has repeatedly applied a two-prong test of "(1) the distinctiveness or conceptual strength of the mark; and (2) the commercial strength or marketplace recognition of the mark." A & H Sportswear v. Victoria's Secret Stores, Inc., 237 F.3d 198, 221 (3d Cir. 2000) (quotations omitted); see also Fisons Horticulture, Inc. v. Vigoro Industries, 30 F.3d 466, 478-79 (3d Cir. 1994). Lanham Trade-Mark Act, §§ 32, 43(a)(1)(A), 15 U.S.C.A. §§ 1114, 1125(a)(1)(A). The Plaintiff's Mark and Trade Dress are distinct as applied to the goods with which they are associated and as used in connection with Plaintiff's Product, which has achieved recognition and fame. See Mason Dec., ¶¶ 9 and 10. Likewise, the Plaintiff's Mark is suggestive as applied to the goods with which it is associated, as each "requires imagination, thought and perception to reach a conclusion as to the nature of the goods," and thus, the Plaintiff's Mark is inherently distinctive and is thereby entitled to trademark protection "without proof of secondary meaning." Stix Prods., Inc. v. United Merchants & Mfrs., Inc., 295 F. Supp. 479, 488 (S.D.N.Y. 1968); see also Thompson Medical Co. v. Pfizer Inc., 753 F.2d 208, 216 (2d Cir. 1985); Bernard v. Commerce Drug Co., 774 F. Supp. 103 (E.D.N.Y. 1991) (applying the aforementioned standards in the context of an unregistered trademark). Thus, this factor weighs in Plaintiff's favor since Plaintiff owns an inherently distinct trademark.

2. Defendants' Infringing Products and Marks are Virtually Identical to Plaintiff's Product and Plaintiff's Mark

Defendants have used identical copies of the Plaintiff's Mark in marketing and promoting their substandard, Infringing Products at Defendants' User Accounts and Merchant Storefronts; as such, this factor weighs in favor of Plaintiff. Defendants' Infringing Products are clearly designed to look as much like the Plaintiff's Products as possible, without the quality and workmanship of the Plaintiff's Products. See id.; see also Rado Watch Co. v. ABC, Co., 92-cv-3657-PKL, 1992 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 8356, at *11 (S.D.N.Y. June 8, 1992) (finding that the similarity of the marks weighed heavily in plaintiff's favor where it is "exceedingly difficult" to distinguish between authentic and infringing goods, "even in a side-by-side comparison"). Only minor differences exist between the Infringing Products and the Plaintiff's Product, which have no bearing on a finding of likelihood of confusion. See id.; see also Fun-Damental Too, Ltd. v.

Gemmy Indus. Corp., 111 F.3d 993, 1004-1005 (2d Cir. 1997) (holding that the test for confusion is “whether they create the same general overall impression such that a consumer who has seen” the authentic product would, when seeing the infringing product, be confused). Further, courts do “not look with much favor on the businessman who, out of the wealth of words available, chooses as a trademark one which comes as close as he dares to a well-known mark on the identical product.” A.T. Cross Co. v. Jonathan Bradley Pens, Inc., 470 F.2d 689, 692 (2d Cir. 1972).

3. *The Sophistication of Purchasers

“Where the purchasers of a products are highly trained professionals, they know the market and are less likely than untrained consumers to be misled or confused by the similarity of different marks.” Virgin Enters. Ltd. v. Nawab, 335 F.3d 141, 151 (2d Cir. 2003). In contrast, ordinary “retail customers,” (i.e., the consumers of Plaintiff’s and Defendants’ products), “are not expected to exercise the same degree of care as professional buyers, who are expected to have greater powers of discrimination.” Pretty Girl, Inc. v. Pretty Girl Fashions, Inc., 778 F. Supp. 2d 261, 268-269 (E.D.N.Y. 2011) (citing Virgin Enterprises, 335 F.3d at 151) (quoting district court). See also Fisons, 30 F.3d at 478–79. Thus, this factor favors Plaintiff’s likelihood of success on the merits.

4. *Defendants Acted in Bad Faith

Given that Defendants’ choice of marks, which is identical to the Plaintiff’s Mark and used in connection with the offering for sale and/or sale of virtually identical products, it can be presumed that Defendants intended to trade off the goodwill and reputation of Plaintiff, its Product and its Mark. See Mason Dec., ¶¶ 27 – 29 and Odell Dec., ¶ 2 and Composite Exhibit 1; see also Kraft Gen. Foods, Inc. v. Allied Old English, Inc., 831 F. Supp. 123, 132 (S.D.N.Y.

1993) (“When a company appropriates an identical mark that is well known and has acquired a secondary meaning, an inference can be drawn that the company intends to capitalize on the goodwill and reputation of the mark as well as any confusion that might result concerning the common origin of that mark and the senior user's product.”).<sup>15</sup> If Defendants’ infringing actions are found to be willful, “likelihood of confusion will be presumed as a matter of law.” N.Y. State Soc’y of CPA’s v. Eric Louis Assocs., 79 F. Supp. 2d 331, 340 (S.D.N.Y. 1999).

5. Actual Confusion Can Be Inferred Between Defendants’ Infringing Products and the Plaintiff’s Product

Seeing as Defendants are offering for sale and/or selling knock-off and/or counterfeit versions of the Plaintiff’s Product under the Plaintiff’s Mark, or a confusingly similar mark, actual confusion can be inferred. See Mason Dec., ¶¶ 19, and Odell Dec. at ¶ 2 and Composite Exhibit 1. Moreover, actual confusion exists in this case. See Mason Dec. ¶ 20.

Notwithstanding, Plaintiff does not need to prove actual confusion, only a likelihood of confusion to obtain equitable relief. See Opticians Ass’n of America v. Independent Opticians of America Prot., 920 F.2d 187, 195 (citations omitted). See also One Alarm Monitoring, Inc. v. Exec. Prot. One Sec. Serv., LLC, 553 F. Supp. 2d 201, 206 (E.D.N.Y. 2008) (quoting Warner Bros., Inc. v. Gay Toys, Inc., 658 F.2d 76, 79 (2d Cir. 1981) (“To obtain an injunction in a trademark case the plaintiff need show ‘only a likelihood of confusion or deception ... in order to obtain equitable relief.’”).

<sup>15</sup> See also Toys "R" Us, Inc., 559 F. Supp. 1189, 1199 (E.D.N.Y. 1983) (citing E.I. duPont de Nemours & Co. v. Yoshida International, Inc., 393 F. Supp. 502, 514 (E.D.N.Y. 1975)) (“On the assumption that a businessman will ordinarily act to his commercial advantage, and that the attraction of an established business’ good will to the newcomer's product is such an advantage, the inference to be drawn from imitation is the imitator's own expectation of confusion as to the source of origin of his product. Where, as here, there is little to distinguish the marks themselves and the prior mark is a long-established one of which the newcomer was aware, doubts about intent are resolved against the newcomer, and a reasonable explanation of its choice is essential to establish lack of intent to deceive.”) and Gucci America, Inc. v. Action Activewear, Inc., 759 F. Supp. 1060, 1065 (S.D.N.Y. 1991) (“Where the evidence "shows or requires the inference that another's name was adopted deliberately with a view to obtain some advantage from the good will, good name, and good trade which another has built up, then the inference of likelihood of confusion is readily drawn, for the very act of the adopter has indicated that he expects confusion and resultant profit.”) (internal citation omitted).

6. Defendants’ Infringing Products Are of Inferior Quality

The Plaintiff’s Product is manufactured with high quality materials. See Mason Dec. ¶ 11. Plaintiff has neither authorized Defendants’ use of the Plaintiff’s Mark or Trade Dress or confusingly similar marks in connection with the Infringing Products nor approved or tested Defendants’ Infringing Products being offered for sale and/or sold under or in connection with the Plaintiff’s Mark and/or confusingly similar marks. See Id. at ¶¶ 21 - 28. Hence, Defendants have encroached on Plaintiff’s right to control the quality of the goods manufactured and sold under the Plaintiff’s Mark. See Groupe SEB USA v. Euro-Pro Operating LLC, 774 F.3d 192 (3d Cir. 2014). See also Polymer Technology Corp. v. Mimran, 975 F.2d 58, 62 (2d Cir. 1992) (quoting El Greco Leather Products Co., 806 F.2d at 395) (“One of the most valuable and important protections afforded by the Lanham Act is the right to control the quality of the goods manufactured and sold under the holder’s trademark . . . the actual quality of the goods is irrelevant; it is the control of quality that a trademark holder is entitled to maintain”). In light of the above, this factor further supports a finding of likelihood of confusion.

7. Defendants’ Infringing Products Directly Compete with the Plaintiff’s Product and There is No Gap to Bridge

In considering the proximity of the products in the market, the concern is “competitive proximity,” meaning “whether and to what extent the two products compete with each other.” Cadbury Beverages Inc. v. Cott Corp., 73 F.3d 474, 480 (2d Cir. 1996). In assessing the proximity of the parties’ products, courts “look to the nature of the products themselves and the structure of the relevant market. Among the considerations germane to the structure of the market are the class of customers to whom the goods are sold, the manner in which the products are advertised, and the channels through which the goods are sold.” Id. (citations and internal quotations omitted). “[T]he closer the secondary user’s goods are to those the consumer has seen marketed under the prior user’s band, the more likely that the consumer will mistakenly assume a common source.” Virgin Enterprises v. Nawab, 335 F.3d 141, 150 (2d Cir. 2003). In this case, Infringing Products and the Plaintiff’s genuine products are both marketed through the same channel of trade (the Internet), to the same retail consumers, and the retail customers are likely to be confused that the products are the same, so this factor weighs in favor of Plaintiff.

Further, where, as here, Defendants are offering for sale and selling products that are virtually identical in kind, but not in quality to the Plaintiff’s genuine products, bearing infringing marks in the same class of goods under which Plaintiff sells its products, they are already in competitive proximity and there is no “gap” to bridge. See Mason Dec., ¶¶ 21 - 28; Odell Dec., ¶ 3 and Composite Exhibit 1. “[T]here is a great likelihood of confusion when an infringer uses the exact trademark....” U.S. Jaycees v. Philadelphia Jaycees, 639 F.2d 134, 142 (3d Cir. 1981). Thus, likelihood of confusion is inevitable, when, as in this case, the identical mark is used concurrently by unrelated entities. See also 2 McCarthy, § 23:3 (“Cases where a defendant uses an identical mark on competitive goods hardly ever find their way into the appellate reports. Such cases are ‘open and shut’ and do not involve protracted litigation to determine liability for trademark infringement.”). Starbucks Corp. v. Wolfe's Borough Coffee, Inc., 588 F.3d 97, 115 (2d Cir. 2009) (This factor “is irrelevant . . . where . . . the two products are in direct competition with each other.”); see also Star Indus. v. Bacardi & Co., 412 F.3d 373, 387 (2d Cir. 2005) (concluding that “[b]ecause . . . [the] products are already in competitive proximity, there is really no gap to bridge, and this factor is irrelevant to the Polaroid analysis”) and Pfizer, Inc. v. Y2K Shipping & Trading, Inc., 00-cv-5304-SJ, 2004 U.S. Dist.. LEXIS 10426, at *15-16 (E.D.N.Y. March 26, 2004) (citations omitted) (“Where the products are competitive, there is no gap to bridge and the likelihood of confusion is greater.”).

3. Plaintiff Is Likely to Prevail on Its State Law Claims

Because Plaintiff has shown a likelihood of success on its Lanham Act claims, Plaintiff respectfully submits that it has also shown a likelihood of success on its unfair competition and common law trademark infringement claims under Pennsylvania Law. Mateson Chemical Corp. v. Veronon, 2000 WL 680020, at *5 n.7 (E.D. Pa. May 9, 2000). See also Advance Magazine Publs. Inc. v. Vogye Intern., 123 F. Supp. 2d 790, 795 (D.N.J. 2000) (citing A &H Sportswear, Inc., 237 F.3d at 201 - 11.)

4. The Balance of Hardships Favors Plaintiff

The balance of hardships unquestionably and overwhelmingly favors Plaintiff in this case. Here, as described above, Plaintiff has suffered, and will continue to suffer, irreparable harm to its business, the value, goodwill and reputation built up in and associated with the Plaintiff’s Mark and Trade Dress and to its reputation as a result of Defendants’ willful and knowing sales of substandard imitations of the Plaintiff’s genuine product. See Mason Dec., ¶¶ 19 - 29. In contrast, any harm to Defendants would only be the loss of Defendants’ ability to continue to offer their Infringing Products for sale, or, in other words, the loss of the benefit of being allowed to continue to unfairly profit from their illegal and infringing activities. “Indeed, to the extent defendants ‘elect[] to build a business on products found to infringe[,] [they] cannot be heard to complain if an injunction against continuing infringement destroys the business so elected.” Windsurfing Intern, Inc. v. AMF, Inc., 782 F.2d 995, 1003 n.12 (Fed. Cir. 1986);

Broad. Music, Inc. v. Prana Hosp., Inc., 158 F. Supp. 3d 184, 196 (S.D.N.Y. 2016) (quoting Mint, Inc. v. Amad, 2011 U.S. Dist.. LEXIS 49813, at *3 (S.D.N.Y. 2011) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted)); see also Mitchell Group USA LLC, No. 14-cv-5745-DLI/JO, 2014 U.S. Dist.. LEXIS 143001, at *6-7 (E.D.N.Y Feb. 17, 2014) (citing Philip Morris USA Inc. v. 5 Bros. Grocery Corp., No. 13-cv-2451- DLI/SMG, 2014 U.S. Dist.. LEXIS 112274 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 5, 2014) (“Absent an injunction, there will be further erosion of plaintiff’s goodwill and reputation. Defendants, on the other hand, will be called upon to do no more than refrain from what they have no right to do in the first place.”)).

5. The Relief Sought Serves the Public Interest

Defendants are directly defrauding the consuming public by palming off the Infringing Products as Plaintiff’s genuine goods. The “public has an interest in not being deceived—in being assured that the mark it associates with a product is not attached to goods of unknown origin and quality.” Public interest can be defined a number of ways, but in a trademark case, it is most often a synonym for the right of the public not to be deceived or confused. 2 McCarthy, § 30:21. See Bill Blass, Ltd. v. Saz Corp., 751 F.2d at 156 (there is a public interest in the protection of the trademark and to avoid confusion in the public); SK & F, Co. v. Premo Pharmaceutical Laboratories, 625 F.2d 1055, 1057 (3d Cir.1980) (“preventing deception of the public is itself in the public interest”). See also International Kennel Club v. Mighty Star, Inc., 846 F.2d at 1092 n. 8 (“[T]he relevant consideration is the consumer’s interest in not being deceived.”) Here, the public has an interest in being able to rely on the high quality of the Plaintiff’s genuine products bearing and/or sold in connection with the Plaintiff’s Mark and Trade Dress. Since Defendants have willfully and knowingly inserted substandard Infringing Products into the marketplace, the public would benefit from a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction halting any further sale and distribution of Defendants' Infringing Products. See Mason Dec., ¶¶ 23 - 32.

C. PLAINTIFF IS ENTITLED TO AN ORDER PREVENTING 1) THE FRAUDULENT TRANSFER OF ASSETS AND 2) FREEZING OF DEFENDANTS' MERCHANT STOREFRONTS

1. Defendants' Assets Must be Frozen

In addition, the Court should enter an order limiting the transfer of Defendants' unlawfully gained assets. Plaintiff has demonstrated above that they will likely succeed on the merits of their claims. As such, under 15 U.S.C. § 1117(a), Plaintiff will be entitled to an accounting and payment of the profits earned by Defendants throughout the course of their unlawful scheme. Furthermore, it is unlikely that Defendants possess the funds to satisfy any potential judgment and Pennsylvania law also permits the prejudgment restraint sought by Plaintiff. Due to the deceptive nature of Defendants' business, and Defendants' deliberate violations of both federal trademark and patent laws, Plaintiff respectfully requests this Court grant additional ex parte relief restraining the transfer of all monies held or received by Context Logic, PayPal, Amazon, and AliPay or other financial institutions for the benefit of any one or more of the Defendants. See, e.g., Balenciaga Am., Inc. v. Dollinger, No. 10-cv-2912-LTS, 2010 U. S. Dist. LEXIS 107733, at *22 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 8, 2010) (citing Wishnatzki & N athel, Inc. v. H.P. Island-Wide, Inc., No. 00-cv-8051-JSM, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15664, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. 2000) (“[W]here plaintiffs seek both equitable and legal relief in relation to specific funds, a court retains it equitable power to freeze assets.”); Int'l Star Class Yacht Racing Ass'n v. Tommy Hilfiger USA, Inc., 146 F.3d 66, 71-72 (2d Cir. 1998) (“A district court faced with a Lanham Act violation possesses some degree of discretion in shaping [the] relief according to the principles of equity and the individual circumstances of each case” within the parameters of allowing an accounting for profits); George Basch Co., Inc. v. Blue Coral, Inc., 968 F.2d 1532, 1537 (2d Cir. 1992); Tiffany (NJ) LLC v. Forbse, No. 11-cv-4976-NRB, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 72148, at *34 (S.D.N.Y. May 23, 2012); Warner Bros. Entm't Inc. v. Doe, No. 14-cv-3492- KPF, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 190098 (S.D.N.Y. May 29, 2014); and Hoxworth v. Blinder, Robinson & Co., Inc., 903 F.2d 186 (3d Cir. 1990) (district court has power to issue an injunction in order to protect a future damages remedy; the unsatisfiability of a money judgment can constitute irreparable injury).

This Court has broad authority to grant such an order. The Supreme Court has provided that district courts have the power to grant preliminary injunctions to prevent a defendant from transferring assets in cases where an equitable interest is claimed. Grupo Mexicano de Desarrollo, S.A. v. Alliance Bond Funds, Inc., 527 U.S. 308 (1999). The Third Circuit has additionally ruled that district courts have the power to grant preliminary injunctions to prevent a defendant from transferring assets in order to protect a future damages remedy. Hoxworth v. Blinder, Robinson & Co., Inc., 903 F.2d 186 (1990). Moreover, almost every Circuit has interpreted Rule 65 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure to grant authority to restrain assets pendent lite. See Mason Tenders Dist. Council Pension Fund v. Messera, 1997 WL 223077 (S.D.N.Y. May 7, 1997) (acknowledging that “[a]lmost all of the Circuit Courts have held that Rule 65 is available to freeze assets pendent lite under some set of circumstances”).

Courts have the inherent authority to issue a prejudgment asset restraint when plaintiff’s complaint seeks relief in equity. Animale Grp. Inc. v. Sunny’s Perfume Inc., 256 F. App’x 707, (5th Cir. 2007); Levi Strauss & Co. v. Sunrise Int’l Trading Inc., 51 F.3d 982, 987 (11th Cir. 1995); Reebok Int’l Ltd. v. Marnatech Enters., Inc., 970 F.2d 552, 559 (9th Cir. 1992). In the years since Marnatech, many federal courts have granted the temporary restraint of an infringer’s assets in cases similar to this one, including recently in actions against operators of ‘rogue’ websites selling infringing products to ensure the availability of an equitable accounting. See, e.g., The North Face Apparel Corp. and PRL USA Holdings, Inc. v. Fujian Sharing, et al., Civil Action No. 10-Civ-1630 (AKH) (S.D.N.Y. March 2, 2010); National Football League v. Chen Cheng, et al., No. 11-Civ-00344 (S.D.N.Y. January 19, 2011); Tory Burch LLC v. Yong Sheng Intl Trade Co., Ltd., No. 10-Civ-9336 (S.D.N.Y. December 17, 2010).

Plaintiffs may obtain an order restraining Defendants’ Assets by demonstrating a “likelihood of dissipation of the claimed assets, or other inability to recover money damages, if relief is not granted.” DatatechEnters. LLC v. FFMagnatLtd., No. 12-cv-04500-CRB, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 131711, at *12 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 14, 2012) (citing Johnson v. Couturier, 572 F.3d 1067, 1085 (9th Cir. 2009)). District courts have the “authority to freeze those assets which could [be] used to satisfy an equitable award of profits.” North Face Apparel Corp. v. TC Fashions, Inc., No. 05-cv-9083-RMB, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14226, at *10 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 30, 2006) (internal citation omitted). In doing so, a court “may exempt any particular assets from the freeze on the ground that they [are] not linked to the profits of allegedly illegal activity.” Id. at *11. Yet, the onus is on “the party seeking relief [from any such asset freeze] to ‘present documentary proof’” that its profits do not stem from such illegal activity. Id.

Under 15 U.S.C. § 1117(a), a plaintiff in an action arising thereunder is entitled to recover a defendant’s profits derived from the counterfeiting and/or infringement and/or plaintiff’s damages. The Supreme Court specifically held that a trademark “infringer is required in equity to account for and yield up his gains to the true owner,” and “profits are then allowed as an equitable measure of compensation.” Gucci Am. v. Bank of China, 768 F.3d 122, 131-132 (2d Cir. 2014) (quoting Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. v. Wolf Bros. & Co., 240 U.S. 251, 259 (1916) (emphasis added) and Sheldon v. Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corp., 309 U.S. 390, 399 (1940)). Specifically, with respect to claims involving infringement arising under the Lanham Act, it has been established that district courts have the authority to issue a prejudgment asset restraint injunction in favor of plaintiffs seeking an accounting and/or another equitable remedy against allegedly infringing defendants. See, e.g., Warner Bros. Entm't Inc. v. Doe, 2014 U.S. Dist.. LEXIS 190098 (S.D.N.Y. May 29, 2014); Microsoft Corp. v. Jun Yan, 2010 U.S. Dist.. LEXIS 14934 (Dist. Conn. Feb. 18, 2010); Levi Strauss & Co. v. Sunrise Int'l Trading, Inc., 51 F.3d 982 (11th Cir. 1995) (finding that the district court had the authority to freeze assets that could have been used to satisfy an equitable award of profits pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 1117) and Reebok Int'l, Ltd., 970 F.2d at 560 (“Because the Lanham Act authorizes the district court to grant Reebok an accounting of Betech's profits as a form of final equitable relief, the district court had the inherent power to freeze Betech's assets in order to ensure the availability of that final relief.”). Furthermore, in the Third Circuit, the inability of a defendant to satisfy a judgment for legal damages justifies a pre-judgment restraint of existing assets. Hoxworth v. Blinder, Robinson & Co., Inc., 903 F.2d 186 (3d Cir. 1990) (concluding the unsatisfiability of a money judgment can constitute irreparable injury).

An asset freeze in the instant matter is unquestionably warranted because Defendants, who appear to be unknown individuals, that are manufacturing, importing, exporting, advertising, marketing, promoting, distributing, displaying, offering for sale and/or selling Infringing Products to U.S. consumers solely via the Internet, and accepting payment for such Infringing Products in U.S. Dollars through Financial Institutions, thereby causing irreparable harm to Plaintiff in the form of lost sales, loss of goodwill and loss of control of its reputation with licensees, retailers and consumers, and can, and most certainly have the incentive to, transfer and hide their ill-gotten funds if their assets are not frozen. See Ference Dec., ¶ 6.

Moreover, to provide complete equitable relief, courts have granted such orders without providing notice to the defendants. Specifically, federal courts have held that where advance notice of an asset restraint is likely to cause a party to alienate the assets sought to be restrained, a temporary restraining order may be issued ex parte. See F.T. Int'l Ltd. v. Mason, 2000 WL 1514881 *3 (E.D. Pa. 2000) (granting ex parte TRO restraining defendants' bank accounts upon finding that advance notice would likely have caused the defendants to secret or alienate funds); CSC Holdings, Inc. v. Greenleaf Elec., Inc., 2000 WL 715601 (N.D. Ill. 2000) (granting ex parte TRO enjoining cable television pirates and restraining pirates' assets); Dama S.P.A. v. Doe, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 178076, at *4-6 (S.D.N.Y. June 12, 2015) (agreeing that, "Plaintiff's concerns regarding the likelihood of dissipating assets merit the extraordinary remedy of ex parte relief and that there is a strong likelihood that advance notice of the motion would cause Defendants to drain Financial Institution accounts, thereby depriving Plaintiff of the remedy it seeks") and SEC v. Caledonian Bank Ltd., 317 F.R.D. 358 (S.D.N.Y. 2016) (granting plaintiff's request for an ex parte asset freeze based on plaintiff's assertion that Defendants were foreign entities, and therefore could easily move assets out of bank or brokerage accounts at a moment's notice).<sup>16</sup>

In this case, Defendants' blatant violations of federal trademark laws warrant an ex parte order restraining the transfer of their ill-gotten assets. Moreover, as Defendants' business are conducted anonymously over the Internet, Plaintiff has additional cause for ex parte relief, as Defendants may easily secret or transfer their assets with the Court's or Plaintiff's knowledge.

2. Defendants' User Accounts and Merchant Storefronts Must be Frozen

A temporary restraining order which, in part, restrains and enjoins the Third Party Service Provider(s), as well as any and all as yet undiscovered online marketplace platforms, from providing services to Defendants' User Accounts and Merchant Storefronts is warranted and necessary because the continued offering for sale and/or sale of the Infringing Products by Defendants on their Merchant Storefronts through their User Accounts will result in immediate and irreparable injury to Plaintiff, as described above. See Gucci Am., Inc. v. Weixing Li, 768 F.3d 122, 126 (2d Cir. 2014) (Hon. Richard J. Sullivan entered a temporary restraining order, which, in part, enjoined the sale of counterfeit goods on the Internet) and AW Licensing, LLC v. Bao, No. 15-cv-1373, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 177101, at *3 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 1, 2015) (Hon. Katherine B. Forrest entered a temporary restraining order which was subsequently converted to a preliminary injunction, which, in part, disabled the defendants' websites, which were their means of distributing, offering for sale and selling counterfeit products.).<sup>17</sup>

One reason why courts have ordered this relief is the ease with which a Merchant Storefront may be set up. For example, a defendant who knowingly sells Infringing Products will likely try and set up another Merchant Storefront to keep selling when the current Merchant Storefront stops working. See FERENCE Dec., ¶ 6. This brings into play a balancing of the hardship to Defendants against the hardship to Plaintiff if the relief is not granted. In the present case, the hardship to Plaintiff outweighs any hardship to Defendants. The proposed Order does not block any of the enjoined Defendants from setting up another Merchant Storefront to sell non-Infringing Products. The proposed Order merely blocks any goodwill associated with the Merchant Storefront which sold Infringing Products; the Defendants are free to set up a new Merchant Storefront that does not sell Infringing Products.

Blocking the good will associated with the Merchant Storefront helps prevent the situation with the defendants where the Infringing Product listing has been taken down but if someone (e.g., a repeat buyer) contacts a Defendant at the Merchant Storefront using the messaging system provided by the online marketplace asking for the Infringing Product it will be made available by a Defendant. Id. The only way to preclude this type of harm to Plaintiff is to freeze the Defendants' Merchant Storefronts.

A freezing of Defendants' Merchant Storefronts also acts to provide immediate notice of the present action to Defendants. Indeed, a number of cases have required that the domain names on which a defendant's storefront operates be turned over to the plaintiff and pointed to a webpage providing notice of the lawsuit against the defendant. Iron Maiden Holdings Ltd. v. The P'ships & Unincorporated Assns. Identified on Schedule "A", No. 18-CV-522 (N.D. Ill. Feb. 1, 2018) ("Plaintiff may provide notice of these proceedings to Defendants, including notice of the preliminary injunction hearing and service of process pursuant to Fed.R.Civ.P. 4(f)(3), by electronically publishing a link to the Complaint, this Order and other relevant document on a website to which the Defendant Domain Names which are transferred to Plaintiff's control will redirect"). Thus, the freezing of Defendants' Merchant Storefronts is also a manner of ensuring that Defendants receive notice of the present action.

D. PLAINTIFF IS ENTITLED TO AN ORDER AUTHORIZING EXPEDITED DISCOVERY

Additionally, Plaintiff respectfully requests that the Court order expedited discovery from Defendants, Financial Institutions and the Third Party Service Provider regarding the scope and extent of Defendants' infringing activities, as well as Defendants' account details and other information relating to Defendants' Financial Accounts, Assets and/or any and all User Accounts and or Financial Accounts with the Third Party Service Provider, including, without limitation any and all websites, any and all accounts with online marketplace platforms, as well as any and all as yet undiscovered accounts with additional online marketplace platforms held by or associated with Defendants, their respective officers, employees, agents, servants and all other persons in active concert with any of them ("User Accounts"), and any and all User Accounts through which Defendants, their respective officers, employees, agents, servants and all persons in active concert or participation with any of them operate storefronts to manufacture, import, export, advertise, market, promote, distribute, display, offer for sale, sell and/or otherwise deal in products, including Infringing Products, which are held by or associated with Defendants, their respective officers, employees, agents, servants and all persons in active concert or participation with any of them ("Merchant Storefront(s)") including, without limitation, those owned and operated, directly or indirectly, by the Third Party Service Provider and the Financial Institutions.

District courts have broad power to require early document production and to permit expedited discovery. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 30(b), 34(b). Expedited discovery may be granted when the party seeking it demonstrates: (1) irreparable injury; (2) some likelihood of success on the merits; (3) some connection between expedited discovery and the avoidance of irreparable injury; and (4) some evidence that the injury which will result without expedited discovery looms greater than the injury that defendant will suffer if expedited discovery is granted. See, e.g., Advanced Portfolio Technologies, Inc. v. Advanced Portfolio Technologies Ltd., 1994 U.S. Dist.. LEXIS 18457, at *7 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 28, 1994).

Generally, a party may not seek discovery prior to a Rule 26(f) conference unless authorized by a court order. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(d)(1). While in the past, Courts have often applied a four-factor test to determine when expedited discovery may be granted,<sup>18</sup> they now apply a more flexible “good cause” test to examine “the discovery request . . . on the entirety of the record to date and the reasonableness of the request in light of all the surrounding circumstances.” Ayyash v. Bank Al-Madina, 233 F.R.D. 325, 326 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) (quoting Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. v. O’Connor, 194 F.R.D. 618, 624 (N.D. Ill. 2000)).<sup>19</sup> Regardless of which test is applied, Plaintiff has established that it is entitled to the expedited discovery requested. Plaintiff has demonstrated both irreparable injury and its probability of success on the merits above, and taking into account the covert nature of many of the Defendants, their business operations and the fact that they appear to be foreign individuals or companies, though not foreign, who have both the incentive and the capability to hide or destroy relevant business records and other discoverable information and documentation upon hearing of this action, Plaintiff respectfully submits that there is good cause for this Court to grant Plaintiff the expedited discovery requested herein because it will prevent further injury to Plaintiff and assist Plaintiff in pursuing its claims against Defendants and in recovering the damages to which it is entitled. See Ayyash, 233 F.R.D., at 327.

<sup>18</sup> “. . . the plaintiff must demonstrate (1) irreparable injury, (2) some probability of success on the merits, (3) some connection between the expedited discovery and the avoidance of the irreparable injury, and (4) some evidence that the injury that will result without expedited discovery looms greater than the injury that the defendant will suffer if the expedited relief is granted.” Advanced Portfolio Techs., Inc. v. Advanced Portfolio Techs., Ltd., 1994 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18457, at *7 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 28, 1994).

<sup>19</sup> See, e.g., Malibu Media, LLC v. Doe, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 64656, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. May 16, 2016); Malibu Media, LLC v. Doe, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 87751, at *2-3 (S.D.N.Y. July 6, 2015); Milk Studios, LLC v. Samsung Elecs. Co., 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 38710, at *4-5 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 25, 2015); Admarketplace, Inc. v. Tee Support, Inc., No., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 129749, at *3-4 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 11, 2013); Dig. Sin, Inc. v. Does 1-176, 279 F.R.D. 239, 241 (S.D.N.Y. 2012); and Stern v. Cosby, 246 F.R.D. 453, 457 (S.D.N.Y. 2007) (agreeing with the Ayyash Court that the more flexible approach is the better approach.).

Despite the likelihood of success of Plaintiff's claims and the injury it has and continues to endure, if this Court were to deny expedited discovery, Plaintiff may lose the opportunity to effectively pursue their claims against Defendants because there are several aspects of Defendants' infringing activities that Plaintiff is not yet able to confirm, including: 1) the true identities of Defendants, 2) the full scope of Defendants' infringing activities, 3) the source or location of Defendants' inventory of Infringing Products and/or 4) where the proceeds from Defendants' infringing activities have gone. See Admarketplace, Inc. v. Tee Support, Inc., No. 13-cv-5635- LGS, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 129749, at *5 (S.D.N.Y. Sep. 11, 2013) (finding that a plaintiff "who has a potentially meritorious claim and no ability to enforce it absent expedited discovery, has demonstrated good cause for expedited discovery"). Therefore, only through an order from the Court allowing expedited discovery will Plaintiff be able to fully ascertain the extent of Defendants' infringing activities.

Plaintiff respectfully requests an ex parte Order allowing expedited discovery in order to permit it to discover certain identifying information, including information concerning all of Defendants' Financial Accounts, Assets and User Accounts and their sales of Infringing Products. The discovery requested on an expedited basis in Plaintiff's [Proposed] Order has been limited to include only that which is essential to prevent further irreparable harm. Under Fed. R. Civ. P. 65(d)(2)(C), this Court has the power to bind any third parties who are in active concert with Defendants that are given notice of the Order to provide expedited discovery. Moreover, Financial Institutions and the Third Party Service Provider have complied with similar requests for expedited discovery in like actions before this Court. See supra note 5. Plaintiff respectfully submits that its request should be granted.

E. PLAINTIFF’S REQUEST FOR A SECURITY BOND
IN THE AMOUNT OF $5,000 IS ADEQUATE

Generally, a bond is a condition of preliminary injunctive relief. Fed. R. Civ. P. 65(c) requires a successful applicant for a preliminary injunction to post a bond, “in such sum as the [district] court deems proper, for the payment of such costs and damages as may be incurred or suffered by any party who is found to have been wrongfully enjoined.” Thus, the injunction bond “provides a fund to use to compensate incorrectly enjoined defendants.” Instant Air Freight Co. v. C.F. Air Freight, Inc., 882 F.2d 797, 804 (3d Cir. 1989) (quotations omitted).

The injunction bond also serves other functions. “It is generally settled that, with rare exceptions, a [party] wrongfully enjoined has recourse only against the bond.” Id.; see also Hoxworth v. Blinder, Robinson & Co., Inc., 903 F.2d 186, 210 n. 31 (3d Cir.1990) (Applicants “derive some protection from the bond requirement, for [enjoined parties] injured by wrongfully issued preliminary injunctions can recover only against the bond itself.”). Thus, the bond generally limits the liability of the applicant and informs the applicant of “the price [it] can expect to pay if the injunction was wrongfully issued.” Instant Air Freight, 882 F.2d at 805; see also id. at 805 n. 9 (“The bond can thus be seen as a contract in which the court and [the applicant] ‘agree’ to the bond amount as the ‘price’ of a wrongful injunction.”) (quotations omitted).

Plaintiff respectfully submits that in connection with the Court’s order pursuant to its inherent equitable power requiring that the Defendants’ Assets and Defendants Financial Accounts be frozen by the Financial Institutions, Plaintiff’s provision of security in the amount of $5,000 (“Security Bond”) is more than sufficient. This Security Bond is equal to an amount that similar plaintiffs have posted in related cases before Courts. See, e.g., Talisman Designs v.

Dasani, No. 20-1084 (W.D. Pa. July 22, 2020)(Temporary Restraining Order required $5,000 bond, after sua sponte order reducing bond amount); Doggie Dental Inc. v. Go Well, No. 19-cv-1282 (W.D. Pa. Oct. 11, 2019) (Hornak, J.) (Temporary Restraining Order required $5,000 bond); Doggie Dental Inc. v. Worthbuyer, No. 19-cv-1283 (W.D. Pa. Oct. 11, 2019) (Hornak, J.) (Temporary Restraining Order required $5,000 bond); Doggie Dental Inc. v. Max_Buy, No. 19-cv-746 (W.D. Pa. June 27, 2019) (Hornak, J.) Babymove, Civil Action No. 19-cv-166-NBF* (Temporary Restraining Order entered on February 14, 2019, $5,000.00 bond required), Rapid Slicer, LLC v. Buyspry, Civil Action No. 19-cv-249-MJH (Temporary Restraining Order entered on March 11, 2019, $5,000 bond required), Showtech Merchandising, Inc. v. Various John Doe, et al, 2:12-cv-1270 (W.D. Pa. Sept. 6, 2012); See Wow-Virtual Reality, Inc. v. 740452063 et al., No. 18-cv-3618, Dkt. 18 (S.D.N.Y. April 25, 2018); Rovio Entertainment Ltd. and Rovio Animation OY v. Best Baby and Kid Store, et al., No. 17-cv- 4884-KPF, Dkt. 6 (S.D.N.Y. June 28, 2017); Rovio Entertainment Ltd. and Rovio Animation OY v. Angel Baby Factory d/b/a Angelbaby_factory et al., No. 17-cv-1840-KPF, Dkt. 11 (S.D.N.Y. March 27, 2017). Moreover, one New York Court has gone as far as to hold that no security bond is necessary in similar circumstances. See, e.g., Ontel Products Corp. v. Airbrushpainting Makeup Store a/k/a Airbrushespainting, et al., No. 17-cv-871-KBF, Dkt. 20 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 6, 2017).<sup>20</sup>

<sup>20</sup> The Second Circuit has held that “[d]istrict courts ... are vested with wide discretion in determining the amount

Plaintiff believes that Defendants would be unable to show a strong likelihood of harm, and even if Defendants were to experience a likelihood of harm, such harm is outweighed by the harm to Plaintiff, as detailed above. For these reasons, Plaintiff respectfully requests that the Court, in accordance with Fed. R. Civ. P. 65(a), enter the Security Bond in the amount of $5,000.

IV. CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth above, Plaintiff respectfully requests that its Application be granted ex parte and that the Court enter: 1) a temporary restraining order; 2) an order restraining assets and Merchant Storefronts; 3) an order to show cause why a preliminary injunction should not issue; and 4) an order authorizing expedited discovery against Defendants, the Third Party Service Providers and the Financial Institutions, in the form of the [Proposed] Order accompanying this Application, and such other relief to which Plaintiff may show it is legally entitled.

Respectfully submitted,
