DECLARATION OF NICHOLAS MESITI, ESQ., IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR A PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

I, Nicholas Mesiti, Esq., under penalty of perjury, declare and state as follows:

I. INTRODUCTION

1. I am an attorney duly admitted to practice law in the State of New York and have been retained as an expert by JE Corporate, LLC and Jacki Easlick, LLC (hereinafter "Plaintiffs") in connection with the above-captioned action. I make this declaration in support of Plaintiffs' motion for a preliminary injunction.

2. My Curriculum Vitae is attached as an exhibit (see Exhibit A). My time in this matter is billed at a rate of $580 per hour.

3. As set forth in the Complaint in this matter, JE Corporate, LLC is the owner of United States Patent No. D695,526, entitled "HANDBAG HANGER HOOK" (hereinafter "the `526 patent") (see Exhibit B). Infringing Product Type 2.

Infringing Product Type 3.

Infringing Product Type 4.

4. I have been retained to provide an opinion on Defendants' infringement of the `526 patent, and the `526 patent's validity. In forming the opinions expressed herein, I relied on my extensive experience as a patent attorney, which includes experience prosecuting and litigating utility and design patents and the factual considerations and legal analyses brought to bear in determining infringement and validity thereof.

II. BACKGROUND, EDUCATION, AND QUALIFICATIONS

5. I have been a practicing attorney since 1988, and am currently a member and shareholder in the intellectual property law firm of Heslin, Rothenberg, Farley, & Mesiti, P.C., located at 5 Columbia Cir., Albany, NY, where I have practiced law since 1990. My practice focuses exclusively on intellectual property law including patent, trademark, copyright, and unfair competition law with emphasis on utility patent, design patent, trademark, and copyright litigation before federal trial and appellate courts of the United States. I have represented numerous clients at trial and on appeal for the purposes of seeking preliminary injunctions, permanent injunctions, accountings and damages. I have counseled clients in various intellectual property matters, including infringement of design patents.

6. I received a Bachelor of Science degree in Mechanical Engineering in 1985 from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, New York. I received my Juris Doctorate degree in 1988 from Albany Law School of Union University, Albany, New York.
7. I personally have prosecuted and/or litigated over a hundred design patents with the United States Patent and Trademark Office and United States federal courts, and my firm has likewise prosecuted and/or litigated over 3000 design patents.

9. It is my expert opinion that the accused products infringe the `526 patent, and that the `526 patent is valid over the references and prior art cited in the `526 patent and by the United States Patent and Trademark Office during prosecution.

10. In formulating my opinions, I have drawn from my understanding of United States law pertaining to interpreting the claims of design patents, determining whether articles infringe such claims, and whether such claims are valid. Among the many pertinent federal court decisions which I am familiar with and which I have based my analyses on, the following cases are included: Microsoft Corp. v. i4i Ltd. P'ship, 131 S. Ct. 2238, 180 L. Ed. 2d 131 (2011); Graham v. John Deere Co. of Kansas City, 383 U.S. 1, 86 S. Ct. 684 (1966); Gorham Mfg. Co. v. White, 81 U.S. 511, 20 L. Ed. 731 (1871); Crocs, Inc. v. Int'l Trade Comm'n, 598 F.3d 1294 (Fed. Cir. 2010); Int'l Seaway Trading Corp. v. Walgreens Corp., 589 F.3d 1233 (Fed. Cir. 2009); Egyptian Goddess, Inc. v. Swisa, Inc., 543 F.3d 665 (Fed. Cir. 2008) (en banc); Catalina Lighting, Inc. v. Lamps Plus, Inc., 295 F.3d 1277 (Fed. Cir. 2002); Hupp v. Siroflex of Am., Inc., 122 F.3d 1456 (Fed. Cir. 1997); OddzOn Products, Inc. v. Just Toys, Inc., 122 F.3d 1396 (Fed. Cir. 1997); L.A. Gear, Inc. v. Thom McAn Shoe Co., 988 F.2d 1117 (Fed. Cir. 1993); and In re Sung Nam Cho, 813 F.2d 378 (Fed. Cir. 1987); Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. v. Covidien, Inc. 796 F.3d 1312 (Fed. Cir. 2015).

IV. LEGAL STANDARDS APPLIED IN AN INFRINGEMENT ANALYSIS

11. I understand that the first step in conducting an analysis of infringement of a design patent entails construing the patent's claim ("claim construction"), which is an issue of law, followed by a factual inquiry as to whether there has been infringement. Egyptian Goddess, Inc. v. Swisa, Inc., 543 F.3d at 679-80.

Construction of Design Patent Claims

12. I understand that a design patent covers the nonfunctional, ornamental features of a design.

13. Design patents claim an overall design, and a claim construction that results from excessive focus on individual features of a design at the expense of considering the overall design is incorrect. Crocs, Inc. v. Int'l Trade Comm'n, 598 F.3d at 1303. Because design patents typically claim designs as shown in drawings, the primary basis for construing the overall design claimed in such patents is by observation of the drawings. Crocs, Inc. v. Int'l Trade Comm'n, 598 F.3d at 1302; Egyptian Goddess, Inc. v. Swisa, Inc., 543 F.3d at 679. Because claim construction consisting of detailed verbal descriptions is likely to define a claim scope that is not an accurate representation of the overall visual impression manifested by the claimed drawings themselves, such verbally detailed construction of design patent claims is disfavored. Crocs, Inc. v. Int'l Trade Comm'n, 598 F.3d 1302; Egyptian Goddess, Inc. v. Swisa, Inc., 543 F.3d at 679.
14. Additional factors, such as conventions applied in drafting design patents and their drawings and assertions made during patent prosecution, may also be brought to bear to determine the scope of patent protection embodied in the drawings claimed in a design patent. Egyptian Goddess, Inc. v. Swisa, Inc., 543 F.3d at 680.

Infringement of Design Patent Claims

15. I further understand that determining infringement of a design patent's claim is a factual determination and that it requires application of what is termed the "ordinary observer" test. Gorham Mfg. Co. v. White, 81 U.S. at 528; Egyptian Goddess, Inc. v. Swisa, Inc., 543 F.3d at 670.
16. Infringement is found according to the ordinary observer test when, "in the eye of an ordinary observer, giving such attention as a purchaser usually gives, two designs are substantially the same, [and] the resemblance is such as to deceive such an observer, inducing him to purchase one supposing it to be the other." Egyptian Goddess, Inc. v. Swisa, Inc., 543 F.3d at 670, quoting Gorham Mfg. Co. v. White, 81 U.S. at 528. While a side-by-side comparison of the claimed design and the infringing design may be helpful in evaluating infringement, the test itself focuses on how the designs would be interpreted by an ordinary observer familiar with the prior art, and not merely on whether the designs have shared features. Croc, Inc. v. Int'l Trade Comm'n, 598 F.3d at 1307.

17. Infringement is found where an article embodies the overall effect of a claimed design. Crocs, Inc. v. Int'l Trade Comm'n, 598 F.3d at 1306. Because infringement requires only similarity of an article's design to a claimed design and not absolute identity between the two, infringement is found where an article's design is similar enough to a claimed design to exhibit the overall impression of the ornamental design features as claimed, and a finding of infringement does not require that the design of the article be identical to the claimed design. Egyptian Goddess, Inc. v. Swisa, Inc., 543 F.3d at 678.
18. In addition to comparing a patented design to an allegedly-infringing article in applying the ordinary observer test, comparison with prior designs that are similar to the patented design may also be of assistance, because the ordinary observer is presumed to have a general understanding of such prior designs as well. Crocs, Inc. v. Int'l Trade Comm'n, 598 F.3d at 1303; Egyptian Goddess, Inc. v. Swisa, Inc., 543 F.3d at 678-79.
19. The ordinary observer test is applied by considering what impression an ordinary purchaser would form when purchasing an accused article, rather than the impression an expert in the field would form under those circumstances. Egyptian Goddess, Inc. v. Swisa, Inc., 543 F.3d at 670.

IV. LEGAL STANDARDS APPLIED IN A VALIDITY ANALYSIS

20. To be valid, the invention claimed in a design patent must be novel and nonobvious. Tests for novelty and nonobviousness are applied to the claims of a design patent in the same manner as they are to those of a utility patent. Hupp v. Siroflex of Am., Inc., 122 F.3d at 1462. Furthermore, just as for utility patents, a design patent is presumed valid, and this presumption can be overcome only by clear and convincing evidence. Microsoft Corp. v. i4i Ltd. P'ship, 131 S. Ct. at 2243; Catalina Lighting, Inc. v. Lamps Plus, Inc., 295 F.3d at 1288.

Functionality

21. The presence of functional features in a design does not render a claim to such a design invalid. Rather, the scope of protection afforded by such a claim is limited to the ornamental, nonfunctional aspects of the claimed design. OddzOn Products, Inc. v. Just Toys, Inc., 122 F.3d at 1406. Thus, when the claimed design is compared to the accused design, functional features are to be ignored. Catalina Lighting, Inc. v. Lamps Plus, Inc., 295 F.3d at 1287. Furthermore, “[i]n determining whether a claimed design is primarily functional, ‘[t]he function of the article itself must not be confused with ‘functionality’ of the design of the article.’” Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. v. Covidien, 796 F.3d at 1328 (quoting Hupp v. Siroflex of Am., Inc. 122 F.3d at 1462). A design is functional and thus invalid if the design is essential to the use and purpose of the article. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. v. Covidien, 796 F.3d at 1328; L.A. Gear, Inc. v. Thom McAn Shoe Co., 988 F.2d at 1123. And, a design is essential to the use or purpose of the article if the design is “dictated by” its use or purpose (i.e., function). Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. v. Covidien, 796 F.3d at 1328 (citing In re Carletti, 328 F.2d 1020, 1022 (1964)); see also L.A. Gear, Inc. v. Thom McAn Shoe Co., 988 F.2d at 1123. When there are numerous different designs that are capable of performing the same function as a claimed design, differences between such designs and the claimed design are not dictated by functional concerns and may be considered ornamental. L.A. Gear, Inc. v. Thom McAn Shoe Co., 988 F.2d at 1123. The availability of such alternative designs is an important, if not dispositive, factor in evaluating the legal functionality of a claimed design. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. v. Covidien, 796 F.3d at 1329-30. As a result, “an inquiry into whether a claimed design is primarily functional should begin with an inquiry into the existence of alternative designs.” Id. at 1330. “To be considered an alternative, the alternative design must simply provide ‘the same or similar functional capabilities.’” Id. at 1331 (quoting Rosco, Inc. v. Mirror Lite Co., 304 F.3d 1373, 1378 (Fed. Cir. 2002))

Novelty

22. The claim to a design is not invalid for anticipation (i.e., lack of novelty) unless a prior art reference by itself teaches a design that is substantially the same as the claimed design. In this regard, the "ordinary observer" test that is applied to determine whether an article infringes the claim in a design patent is also applied to determine whether a prior art reference renders the claim in a design patent invalid for anticipation. That is, a design patent is novel when its overall appearance is not so substantially similar to a design embodied in a single prior art reference that an ordinary observer would be deceived into mistaking the claimed design for that embodied in the prior art reference. Int'l Seaway Trading Corp. v. Walgreens Corp., 589 F.3d at 1239-40.

Nonobviousness

23. The claim to a design is not invalid for obviousness unless, at the time the claimed design was invented, the overall appearance of the claimed design would have been obvious to someone who has ordinary skill in designing the articles involved, in light of prior art that collectively contains all of the ornamental features of the claimed design. Four factors must be considered in determining whether a claim to a design is obvious: (1) the scope and content of the prior art; (2) differences between the claim and the prior art; (3) the level of ordinary skill in the prior art; and (4) secondary considerations, if any, of nonobviousness. Graham v. John Deere Co. of Kansas City, 383 U.S. at 17-18, 86 S. Ct. at 694; Hupp v. Siroflex of Am., Inc., 122 F.3d at 1462; L.A. Gear, Inc. v. Thom McAn Shoe Co., 988 F.2d at 1124.
24. A claim to a design is not invalid for obviousness merely because each of several prior art references contain the features of the claimed design. Rather, invalidity for obviousness requires that there was some reason, for ornamentality purposes, to combine the teachings of the prior art to create a design with the same overall visual appearance as the claimed design. In re Sung Nam Cho, 813 F.2d at 382.

V. ANALYSES

Claim Construction

25. The `526 patent claims "[t]he ornamental design for a handbag hanger hook, as shown and described." One embodiment is depicted therein in eight drawings. The eight drawings corresponding to the depicted embodiment are shown below, and are described in the `526 patent as follows:

Fig. 1 is a perspective view of the handbag hanger hook;

Fig. 2 is a front elevational view thereof;

Fig. 3 is a rear elevational view thereof;

Fig. 4 is a right-side elevational view thereof;

Fig. 5 is a left-side elevational view thereof;

Fig. 6 is a bottom plan view thereof;

Fig. 7 is a top plan view thereof; and,

Fig. 8 is a reduced scale perspective view thereof wherein the top hook is hung on a rod, with a handbag hanging from the bottom hook. The broken line showing the rod and handbag in Fig. 8 is included for the purpose of showing environmental structure and forms no part of the claimed design.

FIG. 6

FIG. 7

FIG. 8

26. The prosecution of the '526 patent does not include activity or actions which would in any way narrow the scope of the patented design or affect its claim construction. Thus, the claim construction of the '526 patent is based primarily upon the patent itself. Considering the overall visual impression given by these drawings, I construe the claim of the '526 patent, based upon the drawings therein, from the perspective of a person of ordinary skill in the art of handbag hanger hooks, as the design for a handbag hanger hook as illustrated in FIG. 1-8 of the '526 Patent, with the understanding that functional elements or features are to be discounted and only ornamental features included. Also, although detailed descriptions of the patented design are disfavored in claim construction, I have set forth below a written description of the patented design, which may be used in claim construction. The patented design includes the following ornamental elements, generally described:

- (a) When viewed from the front, a generally hook shaped top portion with a slight flare near the tip of the top portion, the top portion having a fairly consistent radius, and the hook portion terminating in a bulbous-shaped-type-tip. The top portion is connected to a bottom portion which is rotated ninety degrees from the top portion causing the bottom portion to appear substantially as a straight line from the front. The bottom portion also terminates in a bulbous-shaped-type-tip;
- (b) When viewed from the side, the top portion appears as a substantially straight vertical line formed by a rear section of the top portion with a very slight curvature with a partially visible front section which extends at an angle from the rear section which terminates in a bulbous-shaped-type-tip. The top portion is connected to the bottom portion by an angled offset section in the plane of the bottom portion. The bottom portion is generally U-shaped and terminates in a bulbous-shaped-type-tip;
- (c) When viewed from the top, the design has a generally cross shape, in which the bottom portion appears as a generally straight line terminating in a bulbous-shaped-type-tip, and in which the top portion appears as a generally straight line which is perpendicular to the bottom portion. The top portion includes a small flare near one end which terminates in a bulbous-shaped-type-tip. A slight offset with a curvature connects the top portion and the bottom portion; and
- (d) The overall form of the design is a hooked top portion in the shape of the top half of an "S," which is connected to a substantially U-shaped bottom portion rotated ninety degrees from the top portion. The top portion is connected to the bottom portion by an offset section extending at an angle in the plane of the bottom portion. Both terminal ends of the design terminate in bulbous-shaped-type-tips.

Infringement

27. To perform my infringement analysis, I viewed the accused articles, including from the same perspectives as the drawings claimed in the '526 patent. Photographs of the accused articles are included in Exhibits H-K. Comparisons of the accused articles, the patented design, and the closest prior art designs are included in Exhibits Q-T
28. I then compared the patented design as shown in the '526 patent drawings as construed herein with the accused design to determine whether an ordinary, non-expert observer would consider them to be substantially similar to each other.
29. I further determined what effect the consideration of prior art designs would have on the impressions formed by comparing the patented design with the accused articles. To do this, I reviewed the references cited in the file history of the '526 patent. Among the designs, I considered the embodiments taught in United States Patent No. D560,924 (see Exhibit C) (hereinafter the '924 patent) and United States Patent No. 5,575,446 (see Exhibit D) (hereinafter the '446 patent) to be the most similar to the invention claimed in the '526 patent. The '924 and '446 patents are thus used for the analysis as the closest comparative designs found among the references cited in the file history of the '526 patent.
30. Table 1, infra, compares first side views of a first embodiment claimed in the '526 patent with photographs of Defendant's accused Product Type 1, in view of the embodiments taught in the '924 and '446 patents, respectively. A more comprehensive comparison of these designs showing alternative views can be found in Exhibit Q.

33. Table 4, infra, compares front views of a first embodiment claimed in the '526 patent with photographs of Defendant's accused Product Type 4, in view of the embodiments taught in the '924 and '446 patents, respectively. Front		N/A

34. As is readily apparent, the designs of the accused articles are substantially similar, if not virtually identical, to the design claimed by the '526 patent. And, the differences between the patented design and the comparative prior art designs are substantial. A non-exhaustive set of examples of ornamental design features shared by the patented design and the accused articles includes:

- (a) When viewed from the front, the patented design and the accused articles exhibit a generally hook shaped top portion having a fairly consistent radius, the hook portion terminating in a bulbous-shaped-type-tip. The top portion is connected to a bottom portion which is rotated ninety degrees from the top portion, causing the bottom portion to appear substantially as a straight line from the front. The bottom portion also terminates in a bulbous-shaped-type-tip;
- (b) When viewed from the side, the top portion appears as a substantially straight line which terminates in a bulbous-shaped-type-tip. The top portion is connected to the bottom portion by an offset in the plane of the bottom portion. The bottom portion is generally U-shaped and terminates in a bulbous-shaped-type-tip;
- (c) When viewed from the top, a generally cross shape, in which the bottom portion appears as generally a straight line terminating in a bulbous-shaped-type-tip, and in which the top portion appears as a generally straight line which is perpendicular to the bottom portion. The top portion terminates in a bulbous-shaped-type-tip. A slight offset connects the top portion and the bottom portion; and
- (d) The overall form of the patented design and the infringing designs is a hooked top portion in the shape of the top half of an "S," which is connected to a substantially U-shaped bottom portion rotated ninety degrees from the top portion. The top portion is connected to the bottom portion by an offset in the plane of the bottom portion. Both terminal ends of the designs terminate in bulbous-shaped-type-tips.

35. Thus, the overall appearance of the accused articles is, if not virtually identical, at least so similar to the design claimed in the '526 patent that, in my opinion, in light of the prior art, an ordinary observer would be unlikely to differentiate between them. In arriving at my opinion, I have construed the entirety of the design as indicated herein as being non-functional. However, even if there are functional components, my opinion of infringement would not change as an ordinary observer would still be unlikely to differentiate the overall appearance between the accused and patented designs. Although there are some differences between each of the accused articles and the patented design, these differences are insubstantial as they do not significantly affect the appearance of the overall design. Thus, although not entirely identical, the accused articles are substantially the same as the patented design.

36. Even though some features of the design may perform a function, those features are not considered “functional” as the term is used with respect to design patents. Specifically, the patented design is not dictated by its use or purpose. Any function which may be performed by features of the patented design can be accomplished equivalently by a number of different designs. For example, the function of holding a handbag on a hanger can be performed by numerous alternative designs other than the patented design, such as the handbag hanger hook designs found in the '924 and '446 patents. Because both of these alternative designs can function in the same manner as the patented design in holding a handbag, there is no utilitarian reason for the specific design choices in the patented design, and those choices are considered ornamental. These choices include, among other features, the ninety-degree rotation between the top portion and bottom portion of the patented design, the slight offset in the plane of the bottom portion, and the bulbous-shaped-type-tips. Furthermore, even if the purpose of the patented design includes holding a handbag on a bar or similar structure at a ninety degree angle from the bar, the patented design is not functional. The size and shape of the parts of the handbag hanger hook can be changed and still function identically to the patented design. For example, the bottom section of the design could be of different shapes or proportions, such as square or V-shaped or a modified square or V-shape, and still function similarly, while looking substantially different than the patented design. Thus, due to the presence of numerous different designs which can equally accomplish the same function as the patented design, the patented design is not dictated by its function as a handbag hanger hook and is thus non-functional.

37. It is therefore my opinion that the overall design claimed in the `526 patent is not functional, and Defendants are infringing the `526 patent.

V. VALIDITY OF THE `526 PATENT

38. To perform my validity analysis, I considered the `526 patent, its prosecution history, and all of the references cited therein.

39. Notably, the examiner issued no objections to the patentability of the patented design during examination and issued a Notice of Allowance as a first action, requiring only a minor Examiner's amendment to the figure descriptions in the application for clarity purposes.

40. Like the examiner, I too considered all of the references cited in the `526 patent and, again like the examiner, am of the opinion that the ornamental features of the patented design are novel and nonobvious.

41. To determine novelty of the `526 patent, I ascertained whether an ordinary observer would have found the overall visual impression of the patented design and any design taught within a single prior art reference to be so substantially similar as to mistake one for the other. None of the references considered individually teaches a design with an overall appearance that is so substantially similar to the design claimed in the `526 patent that an ordinary observer would confuse one for the other. Therefore, it is my opinion that the design claimed in the `526 patent is novel and the patent is not invalid for anticipation.

42. To determine nonobviousness of the `526 patent I first determined the scope and content of the prior art. I next considered the level of ordinary skill in the art of handbag hanger hooks. I further considered the differences between the prior art and the design claimed in the `526 patent. I further considered whether, at the time the patented design was invented, it would have been obvious to a designer of handbag hanger hooks, possessing ordinary skill in the art, to combine the prior art references to make a design that is claimed by the `526 patent. The prior art references I considered were those cited in the `526 patent and considered by the examiner during prosecution. It is my opinion that these references do not collectively teach all of the features of the design claimed in the `526 patent such that, at the time the patented design was invented, it would have been obvious for a designer of handbag hanger hooks possessing ordinary skill to combine the teachings of these references to create the patented design. It is therefore my opinion that the design claimed in the `526 patent is nonobvious and is not invalid for obviousness, over the references cited in the `526 patent.

43. Based on the information received as set forth herein, my opinion is therefore that the `526 patent is valid.
44. I further declare under the penalty of perjury that the statements made herein are true to the best of my knowledge.

PROTECTING YOUR INVENTION OUTSIDE THE UNITED STATES

Since the rights granted by a U.S. patent extend only throughout the territory of the United States and have no effect in a foreign country, an inventor who wishes patent protection in another country must apply for a patent in a specific country or in regional patent offices. Applicants may wish to consider the filing of an international application under the Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT). An international (PCT) application generally has the same effect as a regular national patent application in each PCT-member country. The PCT process simplifies the filing of patent applications on the same invention in member countries, but does not result in a grant of "an international patent" and does not eliminate the need of applicants to file additional documents and fees in countries where patent protection is desired.

Almost every country has its own patent law, and a person desiring a patent in a particular country must make an application for patent in that country in accordance with its particular laws. Since the laws of many countries differ in various respects from the patent law of the United States, applicants are advised to seek guidance from specific foreign countries to ensure that patent rights are not lost prematurely.

Applicants also are advised that in the case of inventions made in the United States, the Director of the USPTO must issue a license before applicants can apply for a patent in a foreign country. The filing of a U.S. patent application serves as a request for a foreign filing license. The application's filing receipt contains further information and guidance as to the status of applicant's license for foreign filing.

Applicants may wish to consult the USPTO booklet, "General Information Concerning Patents" (specifically, the section entitled "Treaties and Foreign Patents") for more information on timeframes and deadlines for filing foreign patent applications. The guide is available either by contacting the USPTO Contact Center at 800-786-9199, or it can be viewed on the USPTO website at <http://www.uspto.gov/web/offices/pac/doc/general/index.html>.

For information on preventing theft of your intellectual property (patents, trademarks and copyrights), you may wish to consult the U.S. Government website, <http://www.stopfakes.gov>. Part of a Department of Commerce initiative, this website includes self-help "toolkits" giving innovators guidance on how to protect intellectual property in specific countries such as China, Korea and Mexico. For questions regarding patent enforcement issues, applicants may call the U.S. Government hotline at 1-866-999-HALT (1-866-999-4158).

LICENSE FOR FOREIGN FILING UNDER
Title 35, United States Code, Section 184
Title 37, Code of Federal Regulations, 5.11 & 5.15

GRANTED

The applicant has been granted a license under 35 U.S.C. 184, if the phrase "IF REQUIRED, FOREIGN FILING LICENSE GRANTED" followed by a date appears on this form. Such licenses are issued in all applications where the conditions for issuance of a license have been met, regardless of whether or not a license may be required as set forth in 37 CFR 5.15. The scope and limitations of this license are set forth in 37 CFR 5.15(a) unless an earlier license has been issued under 37 CFR 5.15(b). The license is subject to revocation upon written notification. The date indicated is the effective date of the license, unless an earlier license of similar scope has been granted under 37 CFR 5.13 or 5.14.

This license is to be retained by the licensee and may be used at any time on or after the effective date thereof unless it is revoked. This license is automatically transferred to any related applications(s) filed under 37 CFR 1.53(d). This license is not retroactive.

The grant of a license does not in any way lessen the responsibility of a licensee for the security of the subject matter as imposed by any Government contract or the provisions of existing laws relating to espionage and the national security or the export of technical data. Licensees should apprise themselves of current regulations especially with respect to certain countries, of other agencies, particularly the Office of Defense Trade Controls, Department of State (with respect to Arms, Munitions and Implements of War (22 CFR 121-128)); the Bureau of Industry and Security, Department of Commerce (15 CFR parts 730-774); the Office of Foreign Assets Control, Department of Treasury (31 CFR Parts 500+) and the Department of Energy.

NOT GRANTED

No license under 35 U.S.C. 184 has been granted at this time, if the phrase "IF REQUIRED, FOREIGN FILING LICENSE GRANTED" DOES NOT appear on this form. Applicant may still petition for a license under 37 CFR 5.12, if a license is desired before the expiration of 6 months from the filing date of the application. If 6 months has lapsed from the filing date of this application and the licensee has not received any indication of a secrecy order under 35 U.S.C. 181, the licensee may foreign file the application pursuant to 37 CFR 5.15(b).

Handbag Hanger Hook

I, Jacklyn S Easlick, have invented a new design for a handbag hanger hook, as set forth 5 in the following specification. The invention generally comprises two hooks or circular curved portions vertically connected to each other by a slanted curved middle portion and oriented at a 90 degree angle to each other. The top hook comprises approximately three quarters of a circle and hangs on a closet rod or clothing rack, and the bottom hook resembles a U-shape on which the straps of a handbag are hung. The top hook is 10 positioned approximately vertically above the lowest point of the bottom hook.

DESCRIPTION:

FIG. 1 is a perspective view of the handbag hanger hook;
FIG. 2 is a front elevational view thereof;
15 FIG. 3 is a rear elevational view thereof;
FIG. 4 is a right-side elevational view thereof;
FIG. 5 is a left-side elevational view thereof;
FIG. 6 is a bottom plan view thereof;
FIG. 7 is a top plan view thereof; and,
20 FIG. 8 is a perspective view thereof wherein the top hook is hung on a rod, with a handbag hanging from the bottom hook.

The broken line showing the rod and handbag in FIG. 8 is included for the purpose of showing environmental structure and forms no part of the claimed design.

A device for clamping the wires of a string of decorative lights to Christmas tree branches is formed of a wholly integral length of flexible, but normally shape-retaining material doubled back on itself from opposite ends thereof at opposite sides of a diagonally oriented, substantially central part of the length of material to provide oppositely directed, open loop clamping portions whose openings are at respective opposite sides of but at the central part of the length of material. The flexible material is such that an opening to an open loop can expand to accept branches to be received and held in a clamping loop along with light string wires and can be rotated to open the opening when release of a branch is desired. A loop of the device is selected for clamping to a branch leaving the other loop to serve as a handle for manipulating the device and thereafter free for receiving a Christmas tree decoration.

FIG. 5

CLAMPING DEVICE FOR SECURING CHRISTMAS TREE LIGHT WIRES AND/OR DECORATIONS TO CHRISTMAS TREES

BACKGROUND OF THE INVENTION

1. Field

The invention is in the field of securing Christmas tree lights, garlands, and ornaments to a Christmas tree.

2. State of the Art

Current practice in decorating Christmas trees is generally to drape the wires which connect Christmas tree light sockets with light bulbs therein from branch to branch of the tree to spread the lights around the tree. Generally the wires are not secured to the tree branches. In many instances this means that the wires can slip from the branches, and in some instances, it is difficult to extend the lights in a desired fashion between relatively widely spaced branches. With some light sets, loops in the wire at each light socket are provided with a slide bead over the wires so the loop can be placed about the end of a branch and the slide bead moved to close the loop around the branch to secure the light sockets to desired branches. Other light sockets are provided with clips of some type to enable the light socket to be clipped to a Christmas tree branch. However, the loops and clips generally are provided with relatively large light sockets, and the miniature light sets which have become popular generally do not include any means for securing a light socket to a branch. For some currently available light sets where an upright orientation of the light is important, such as lights which simulate candles, the light socket has a hand-operated spring clip on the bottom of the light socket so the light socket can be clipped to a branch in an upright position.

Similarly to strings of lights, tinsel garlands are generally draped from branch to branch with no means of securing the garland to a branch to hold it from sliding off.

SUMMARY OF THE INVENTION

According to the invention, a device for clamping the wires of a string of decorative lights to Christmas tree branches is formed of a wholly integral length of flexible, but normally shape-retaining material, that is doubled back on itself from opposite ends thereof at opposite sides of a diagonally oriented, substantially central part of the length of material to provide oppositely directed, open loop clamping portions whose openings are at respective opposite sides of but at the central part of the length of material. The clamping loops are generally of different sizes and either of the clamping loops may be selected for clamping a wire of a string of Christmas tree lights to a limb or branch of a Christmas tree. Selection is generally based on the size of the branch to which the device is applied. The other loop provides a handle for manipulating the device and, when in place on a branch, is free for receiving a Christmas tree ornament or other decoration, if desired. Such other loop could, if desired, receive the wire of the decorative light set or could receive a loop of a second device of the invention if additional length is required. The flexible material from which the device is made allows entry of a tree branch into a clamping loop and allows the device to be twisted so that, when desired, a loop thereof can be easily twisted and removed from a branch.

The diagonally oriented, substantially central part of the length of material forms a substantially straight central portion from the ends of which extend the open loop clamping portions. These open loop clamping portions include arcuate portions which extend through at least approximately 270° from the ends of the central portion to double back on the central portion and the arcuate portions flow into relatively short straight portions which extend, preferably substantially parallel to the straight central portion and preferably spaced somewhat from the central portion, to provide openings leading into substantially circular areas formed by the arcuate portions. The relatively short straight portions terminate in end portions which extend at angles outwardly from the central portion to act as guides to the openings between the relatively short portions and the central portion. The transitions between the relatively short straight portion and the end portion are preferably of a relatively large radius compared to the radius of the transitions between the arcuate portions and the relatively short straight portions. This makes it easier to slide the device onto a branch than to slide it off of a branch.

THE DRAWINGS

The best mode presently contemplated for carrying out the invention is illustrated in the accompanying drawings, in which:

FIG. 1 is a side elevation of a device of the invention;

FIG. 2, a perspective view of the device being applied to a Christmas tree branch and decorative light set wire to hold the wire in position on the branch;

FIG. 3, a perspective view similar to that of FIG. 2, showing the device installed on the branch;

FIG. 4, a perspective view similar to that of FIG. 2, but showing the device twisted as it is prepared for removal from the branch; and

FIG. 5, a perspective view similar to that of FIG. 2, but show the device as removed from the branch.

DETAILED DESCRIPTION OF THE ILLUSTRATED EMBODIMENTS

Referring to FIG. 1, the clip or clamping device of the invention is formed of a length of flexible, but normally shape-retaining, material that is doubled back on itself from opposite ends thereof at opposite sides of a diagonally oriented, substantially central part or portion 10 of the length to provide oppositely directed, open loop clamping portions 11 and 12, which open at passage 13 and 14, respectively, at respective opposite sides of central portion 10. Both open loop clamping portions 11 and 12 open along central portion 10.

The central portion 10 is elongate and substantially straight. At each end of the straight central portion 10 is an arcuate portion wherein the clip doubles back on itself to form the open loop elements at each end extending from the central portion 10 in opposite directions. Thus, arcuate portion 15 extends from one end of straight central portion 10, through at least approximately 270° to a relatively short straight portion 16, which preferably is substantially parallel to straight central portion 10, which extends from arcuate portion 15 toward the opposite end of central portion 10. The relatively short straight portion 16 smoothly joins an end portion 17 which extends at an angle outwardly away from the central portion 10. Arcuate portion 18 extends from the opposite end of straight central portion 10, through at least approximately 270° to a relatively short straight portion 19, again which is preferably substantially parallel to straight central portion 10, which extends toward the one end of central portion 10. Relatively short straight portion 19 smoothly joins an end portion 20 which extends at an angle outwardly away from the central portion 10. Arcuate portions 15 and 18 extend from central portion 10 in opposite directions as do end portions 17 and 20. While the relatively short straight portions 16 and 19 could be immediately adjacent central portion 10, it is preferred that they be spaced a short distance from central portion 10 to form the openings or passages 13 between central portion 10 and relatively short straight portion 16, and passage 14 between central portion 10 and relatively short straight portion 19. Passage 13 leads to a substantially circular area 21 formed by arcuate portion 15 and passage 14 leads to substantially circular area 22 formed by arcuate portion 18.

It is important for operation of the device that it be made of a flexible material which is normally shape-retaining which will allow flexing of the open loop portions 11 or 12 to accept and receive branches of a Christmas tree therein. Thus, the arcuate portions 15 or 18 will flex so that the relatively short straight portions 16 or 19 move outwardly whereby the passages 13 or 14 leading to the circular areas 21 or 22 can be enlarged to the normal diameter of the circular areas 21 or 22. This allows passage of a Christmas tree branch into the circular area 21 or 22. The material must also be such that it will return to its original configuration after such flexing so that the arcuate portions 15 or 18 will surround more than one-half of a received branch through the extent of the arc and hold the device on the branch. Polyolefins such as polypropylene and polyethylene have been found to be satisfactory materials. Himont 1050 polypropylene works well.

Each of the open loop portion 11 and 12 will preferably be of different size, i.e., the radius of each of the arcuate portions 15 and 18 will be different, whereby a larger loop can be used for a larger branch and a smaller loop can be used for a smaller branch. However, the loops could be of substantially equal size if desired for particular applications.

As can be seen in FIG. 1, the transition 23 along passage 13 from end portion 17 to relatively short straight portion 16 is smoothly radiused as is the transition 24 from arcuate portion 15 to relatively short straight portion 16. The radius of curvature for transition 23 is relatively large compared to the radius of curvature for transition 24. It is presently preferred that the radius of transition 23 be about double the radius of transition 24. The result of this difference is that it is easier for a branch to cam passage 13 open so the branch can move into circular area 21 than it is for a branch in circular area 21 to cam passage 13 open so that it can move out of circular 21. This is desirable so that it is easy to pull the device over a branch to thereby secure the device to a branch, but so that it is difficult, when once secured, for the branch to come out of the device. This tends to prevent unwanted release of the device from the branch. It is preferred that if a tangent be drawn to the midpoint of the transition, that for transition 23, it intersects the central portion 10 at an angle of between 30° and 45° and that for transition 24 it intersect the central portion 10 at an angle of between 60° and 80°. The transitions for the smaller open loop portion 12 will preferably be substantially the same as for the larger open loop portion 11.

For general indoor Christmas tree use, it is preferred that the clamping device of the invention be as unobtrusive or unnoticeable as possible. It is therefore preferred that the device be sized so that it fits within and does not extend beyond the needles extending from an average fir tree branch. It has been determined that generally an overall device length of about one and one-quarter inch meets this requirement. With such length, the width of the device will be about five-eighths inch. The arcuate portion 15 of the larger open loop portion 11 has a radius of about 0.187 inch and the arcuate portion 18 of the smaller open loop portion 12 has a radius of about 0.125 inch. The radius of the transition 23 from the end portion 17 to the relatively short straight portion 16 is about 0.125 inch while the radius of the transition 24 from the arcuate portion 15 to the relatively short straight portion 16 is about 0.063 inch. The device is made of a length of polypropylene of rectangular cross section with a thickness of about 0.09 inch and a width of about 0.125 inch. Larger passage 13 is about 0.09 inch in width, about the same size as the thickness of the material from which the device is made, and the smaller passage 14 is about two-thirds the size of the larger passage at about 0.06 inch. The lengths of the two relatively short straight portions 16 and 19 are equal and are about 0.09 inches, equal to the width of the larger passage 13. End portions 17 and 20 extend outwardly at an angle of about 60° from the central portion 10.

The above measurements are currently preferred for indoor Christmas tree use, however, it should be realized that the device of the invention could be made in various sizes and, particularly, could be made in a larger size for use with large outdoor trees whose branches are generally larger than indoor Christmas trees.

In use, a user selects the particular open loop portion 11 or 12 to be used with and receive a particular branch, such as loop 11 in FIGS. 2-5, and holds the other open loop portion, 12 in FIGS. 2-5, as a handle to manipulate the device. The entrance to open loop portion 11, formed by end portion 17 leading to passage 13 is positioned adjacent a selected branch 25. If the device is being used to secure a wire 26 of a decorative light set in one of the securement arrangements of the invention, the wire 26 is placed over the branch as shown in FIG. 2 and the entrance to open loop portion 11 is positioned at the intersection of the branch and wire. The device is pulled against the branch in the direction of arrow 27. The loop will flex to enlarge passage 13 so that branch 25 will pass through passage 13 as the device is moved in the direction of the arrow 27 and pass into circular area 21. Open loop portion 11 will close around branch 25 to secure the device to the branch as shown in FIG. 3. Wire 26 is then held in place on branch 25 as shown in FIG. 3. With the current arrangement of the end portion 17 and transition 23 therefrom to relatively short straight portion 16, the device slips easily onto branch 25. With the described arrangement of the transition 24 from the arcuate portion 15 to relative short straight portion 16, it is difficult to slide the device from branch 25. A branch 25 does not have to completely fill circular area 21 for the device to be secured thereto. The branch 25 merely need be larger than passage 13 so that it does not easily pass back through the passage to release the device. Thus, the device will clamp a wire to the branch and hold it in position and will stay on the branch even when loose about the branch.

With the device of the invention secured to branch 25 as shown in FIG. 3, open loop portion 12 is available to receive and hang an ornament 28. Alternately, light string wire 26, rather than being held in place over branch 25 by open loop portion 11 around branch 25, could be positioned in and held in place by open loop portion 12. Tinsel and other garlands could be secured and held to branch 25 in the same manner as wire 26. Further, if a light wire, garland, ornament, or other item is to be supported in position at a greater distance below branch 25, one or more additional devices could be used, one hung from the other end-to-end, to support such item at any desired distance from the branch.

When it is desired to remove the device from the branch 25, a user could, using the entrance to passage 13 formed by end portion 17, flex open loop portion 11 to open passage 13 to allow the device to be removed from branch 25. A preferred method of removal, because it is generally easier, is to grasp the device and twist it as shown by arrow 30 in FIG. 4 to flex open loop portion 11 and straight central portion 10 so that the end of the loop formed by relatively short straight portion 16 and end portion 17 are rotated approximately 90° from their original positions to thereby open passage 13 as shown in FIG. 4, and while in that position, the device is moved upwardly in the direction of arrow 31 and removed from the branch 25. After removal, the material returns to its original configuration and the removed device is shown in FIG. 5.

While it is preferred that relatively short straight portions 16 and 19 extend parallel to central portion 10, this is not necessary and in some instances, particularly with the smaller loop, warpage during cooling of the device after molding may result in portion 19 extending at an angle to central relatively short straight portion 10.

While it is preferred that the branch on which the device is secured fits within the space normally formed by the arcuate portion, with the materials used and the configuration of the device as shown, even if the branch is somewhat bigger than the opening normally formed by the arcuate portion, the device will flex and effectively clamp and hold the branch.

Whereas this invention is here illustrated and described with reference an embodiment thereof presently contemplated as the best mode of carrying out such invention in actual practice, it is to be understood that various changes may be made in adapting the invention to different embodiments without departing from the broader inventive concepts disclosed herein and comprehended by the claims that follow.

We claim:

1. A device for clamping the wires of a string of Christmas tree lights to Christmas tree branches and at the same time providing for attachment of a tree decoration, comprising a wholly integral length of flexible but normally shape-retaining material that is doubled back on itself from opposite ends thereof at opposite sides of a diagonally oriented, substantially central part of said length to provide oppositely directed, open loop clamping portions whose openings are at respective opposite sides of but at said central part of said length, said openings formed by relatively short straight portions substantially parallel to the central part of said length, whereby either of said clamping loops may be selected for clamping of a wire of a string of Christmas tree lights to a branch of the Christmas tree, leaving the other free for receiving a Christmas tree decoration.

2. A device according to claim 1, wherein the flexible, normally shape-retaining material is a polyolefin.

3. A device according to claim 2, wherein the polyolefin is polypropylene.

4. A device according to claim 1, wherein the clamping loops are of different sizes so that selection of the clamping loop is based upon the size of the branch to which the wire is to be clamped.

5. A device for securing the wire of a decorative light string or an ornament to a Christmas tree comprising:

an elongate, substantially straight central portion having opposite ends;

a first arcuate portion extending in a direction from one end of the central portion through an arc of at least approximately 270° to a first arcuate portion end;

a first relatively short straight portion extending from the first arcuate portion end toward the opposite end of the substantially straight central portion, said first relatively short straight portion being substantially parallel with said substantially straight central portion and having a first relatively short portion end toward said opposite end;

a first end portion extending from the first relatively short portion end at an angle outwardly away from the central portion;

a second arcuate portion extending from the opposite end of the central portion in a direction opposite to the direction of the first arcuate portion through an arc of at least approximately 270° to a second arcuate portion end;

a second relatively short straight portion extending from the second arcuate portion end toward the one end of the substantially straight central portion, said second relatively short straight portion being substantially parallel with said substantially straight central portion and having a second relatively short portion end toward said one end; and a second end portion extending from the second relatively short portion end at an angle outwardly away from the central portion;

all portions of said device being unitarily formed of a flexible, normally shape-retaining material to allow said first arcuate portion to bend to allow a tree branch to pass between the central portion and first relatively short straight portion to be received within a space within the first arcuate portion and to allow said first arcuate portion to be twisted sufficiently when desired to allow escape of a received tree branch from the space within the first arcuate portion.

6. A device according to claim 5, wherein the first and second relatively short straight portions are spaced from the central portion to provide an opening therebetween.

7. A device according to claim 5, wherein the flexible material allows the second arcuate portion to bend to allow a tree branch to pass between the central portion and the second relatively short straight portion to be received within a space within the second arcuate portion and to allow the second arcuate portion to be twisted sufficiently when desired to allow escape of a received tree branch from the space within the second arcuate portion.

8. A device according to claim 5, wherein each arcuate portion extends at a constant radius along its length.

9. A device according to claim 8, wherein the first arcuate portion has a first radius and the second arcuate portion has a second radius, and wherein the first and second radii are different, whereby the space within one arcuate portion is larger than the space within the other arcuate portion so that larger branches may be received within the larger space.

10. A device according to claim 5, including a smooth arcuate transition of substantially constant radius from the first end portion to the first relatively short portion and a smooth arcuate transition of substantially constant radius from the first arcuate portion to the first relatively short portion, wherein the radius of the transition from the first end portion to the first relatively short portion is larger than the radius of the transition from the first arcuate portion to the first relatively short portion, whereby it is easier to slide the device onto a branch than it is to slide the device off of a branch.

11. A device according to claim 10, wherein the larger radius is about twice the smaller radius.

12. A device according to claim 10, including a smooth arcuate transition of substantially constant radius from the second end portion to the second relatively short portion and a smooth arcuate transition of substantially constant radius from the second arcuate portion to the second relatively short portion, wherein the radius of the transition from the second end portion to the second relatively short portion is larger than the radius of the transition from the second arcuate portion to the second relatively short portion, whereby it is easier to slide the device onto a branch than it is to slide the device off of a branch.

13. A device according to claim 12, wherein the larger radius is about twice the smaller radius.

14. A device according to claim 5, wherein the flexible, normally shape-retaining material is a polyolefin.

15. device according to claim 14, wherein the polyolefin is polypropylene.

A device for clamping the wires of a string of decorative lights to Christmas tree branches is formed of a wholly integral length of flexible, but normally shape-retaining material doubled back on itself from opposite ends thereof at opposite sides of a diagonally oriented, substantially central part of the length of material to provide oppositely directed, open loop clamping portions whose openings are at respective opposite sides of but at the central part of the length of material. The flexible material is such that an opening to an open loop can expand to accept branches to be received and held in a clamping loop along with light string wires and can be rotated to open the opening when release of a branch is desired. A loop of the device is selected for clamping to a branch leaving the other loop to serve as a handle for manipulating the device and thereafter free for receiving a Christmas tree decoration.

The invention is in the field of securing Christmas tree lights, garlands, and ornaments to a Christmas tree.

2. State of the Art

Current practice in decorating Christmas trees is generally to drape the wires which connect Christmas tree light sockets with light bulbs therein from branch to branch of the tree to spread the lights around the tree. Generally the wires are not secured to the tree branches. In many instances this means that the wires can slip from the branches, and in some instances, it is difficult to extend the lights in a desired fashion between relatively widely spaced branches. With some light sets, loops in the wire at each light socket are provided with a slide bead over the wires so the loop can be placed about the end of a branch and the slide bead moved to close the loop around the branch to secure the light sockets to desired branches. Other light sockets are provided with clips of some type to enable the light socket to be clipped to a Christmas tree branch. However, the loops and clips generally are provided with relatively large light sockets, and the miniature light sets which have become popular generally do not include any means for securing a light socket to a branch. For some currently available light sets where an upright orientation of the light is important, such as lights which simulate candles, the light socket has a hand-operated spring clip on the bottom of the light socket so the light socket can be clipped to a branch in an upright position.

Similarly to strings of lights, tinsel garlands are generally draped from branch to branch with no means of securing the garland to a branch to hold it from sliding off.

SUMMARY OF THE INVENTION

According to the invention, a device for clamping the wires of a string of decorative lights to Christmas tree branches is formed of a wholly integral length of flexible, but normally shape-retaining material, that is doubled back on itself from opposite ends thereof at opposite sides of a diagonally oriented, substantially central part of the length of material to provide oppositely directed, open loop clamping portions whose openings are at respective opposite sides of but at the central part of the length of material. The clamping loops are generally of different sizes and either of the clamping loops may be selected for clamping a wire of a string of Christmas tree lights to a limb or branch of a Christmas tree. Selection is generally based on the size of the branch to which the device is applied. The other loop provides a handle for manipulating the device and, when in place on a branch, is free for receiving a Christmas tree ornament or other decoration, if desired. Such other loop could, if desired, receive the wire of the decorative light set or could receive a loop of a second device of the invention if additional length is required. The flexible material from which the device is made allows entry of a tree branch into a clamping loop and allows the device to be twisted so that, when desired, a loop thereof can be easily twisted and removed from a branch.

The diagonally oriented, substantially central part of the length of material forms a substantially straight central portion from the ends of which extend the open loop

clamping portions. These open loop clamping portions include arcuate portions which extend through at least approximately 270° from the ends of the central portion to double back on the central portion and the arcuate portions flow into relatively short straight portions which extend, preferably substantially parallel to the straight central portion and preferably spaced somewhat from the central portion, to provide openings leading into substantially circular areas formed by the arcuate portions. The relatively short straight portions terminate in end portions which extend at angles outwardly from the central portion to act as guides to the openings between the relatively short portions and the central portion. The transitions between the relatively short straight portion and the end portion are preferably of a relatively large radius compared to the radius of the transitions between the arcuate portions and the relatively short straight portions. This makes it easier to slide the device onto a branch than to slide it off of a branch.

The best mode presently contemplated for carrying out the invention is illustrated in the accompanying drawings, in which:

FIG. 1 is a side elevation of a device of the invention;

FIG. 2, a perspective view of the device being applied to a Christmas tree branch and decorative light set wire to hold the wire in position on the branch;

DETAILED DESCRIPTION OF THE ILLUSTRATED EMBODIMENTS

Referring to FIG. 1, the clip or clamping device of the invention is formed of a length of flexible, but normally shape-retaining, material that is doubled back on itself from opposite ends thereof at opposite sides of a diagonally oriented, substantially central part or portion 10 of the length to provide oppositely directed, open loop clamping portions 11 and 12, which open at passage 13 and 14, respectively, at respective opposite sides of central portion 10. Both open loop clamping portions 11 and 12 open along central portion 10.

The central portion 10 is elongate and substantially straight. At each end of the straight central portion 10 is an arcuate portion wherein the clip doubles back on itself to form the open loop elements at each end extending from the central portion 10 in opposite directions. Thus, arcuate portion 15 extends from one end of straight central portion 10, through at least approximately 270° to a relatively short straight portion 16, which preferably is substantially parallel to straight central portion 10, which extends from arcuate portion 15 toward the opposite end of central portion 10. The relatively short straight portion 16 smoothly joins an end portion 17 which extends at an angle outwardly away from the central portion 10. Arcuate portion 18 extends from the opposite end of straight central portion 10, through at least approximately 270° to a relatively short straight portion 19, again which is preferably substantially parallel to straight central portion 10, which extends toward the one end of central portion 10. Relatively short straight portion 19 smoothly joins an end portion 20 which extends at an angle outwardly away from the central portion 10. Arcuate portions 15 and 18 extend from central portion 10 in opposite directions as do end portions 17 and 20. While the relatively short straight portions 16 and 19 could be immediately adjacent central portion 10, it is preferred that they be spaced a short distance from central portion 10 to form the openings or passages 13 between central portion 10 and relatively short straight portion 16, and passage 14 between central portion 10 and relatively short straight portion 19. Passage 13 leads to a substantially circular area 21 formed by arcuate portion 15 and passage 14 leads to substantially circular area 22 formed by arcuate portion 18.

It is important for operation of the device that it be made of a flexible material which is normally shape-retaining which will allow flexing of the open loop portions 11 or 12 to accept and receive branches of a Christmas tree therein. Thus, the arcuate portions 15 or 18 will flex so that the relatively short straight portions 16 or 19 move outwardly whereby the passages 13 or 14 leading to the circular areas 21 or 22 can be enlarged to the normal diameter of the circular areas 21 or 22. This allows passage of a Christmas tree branch into the circular area 21 or 22. The material must also be such that it will return to its original configuration after such flexing so that the arcuate portions 15 or 18 will surround more than one-half of a received branch through the extent of the arc and hold the device on the branch. Polyolefins such as polypropylene and polyethylene have been found to be satisfactory materials. Himont 1050 polypropylene works well.

Each of the open loop portion 11 and 12 will preferably be of different size, i.e., the radius of each of the arcuate portions 15 and 18 will be different, whereby a larger loop can be used for a larger branch and a smaller loop can be used for a smaller branch. However, the loops could be of substantially equal size if desired for particular applications.

As can be seen in FIG. 1, the transition 23 along passage 13 from end portion 17 to relatively short straight portion 16 is smoothly radiused as is the transition 24 from arcuate portion 15 to relatively short straight portion 16. The radius of curvature for transition 23 is relatively large compared to the radius of curvature for transition 24. It is presently preferred that the radius of transition 23 be about double the radius of transition 24. The result of this difference is that it is easier for a branch to cam passage 13 open so the branch can move into circular area 21 than it is for a branch in circular area 21 to cam passage 13 open so that it can move out of circular 21. This is desirable so that it is easy to pull the device over a branch to thereby secure the device to a branch, but so that it is difficult, when once secured, for the branch to come out of the device. This tends to prevent unwanted release of the device from the branch. It is preferred that if a tangent be drawn to the midpoint of the transition, that for transition 23, it intersects the central portion 10 at an angle of between 30° and 45° and that for transition 24 it intersect the central portion 10 at an angle of between 60° and 80°. The transitions for the smaller open loop portion 12 will preferably be substantially the same as for the larger open loop portion 11.

For general indoor Christmas tree use, it is preferred that the clamping device of the invention be as unobtrusive or unnoticeable as possible. It is therefore preferred that the device be sized so that it fits within and does not extend beyond the needles extending from an average fir tree branch. It has been determined that generally an overall device length of about one and one-quarter inch meets this requirement. With such length, the width of the device will be about five-eighths inch. The arcuate portion 15 of the larger open loop portion 11 has a radius of about 0.187 inch and the arcuate portion 18 of the smaller open loop portion 12 has a radius of about 0.125 inch. The radius of the transition 23 from the end portion 17 to the relatively short straight portion 16 is about 0.125 inch while the radius of the transition 24 from the arcuate portion 15 to the relatively short straight portion 16 is about 0.063 inch. The device is made of a length of polypropylene of rectangular cross section with a thickness of about 0.09 inch and a width of about 0.125 inch. Larger passage 13 is about 0.09 inch in width, about the same size as the thickness of the material from which the device is made, and the smaller passage 14 is about two-thirds the size of the larger passage at about 0.06 inch. The lengths of the two relatively short straight portions 16 and 19 are equal and are about 0.09 inches, equal to the width of the larger passage 13. End portions 17 and 20 extend outwardly at an angle of about 60° from the central portion 10.

The above measurements are currently preferred for indoor Christmas tree use, however, it should be realized that the device of the invention could be made in various sizes and, particularly, could be made in a larger size for use with large outdoor trees whose branches are generally larger than indoor Christmas trees.

In use, a user selects the particular open loop portion 11 or 12 to be used with and receive a particular branch, such as loop 11 in FIGS. 2-5, and holds the other open loop portion, 12 in FIGS. 2-5, as a handle to manipulate the device. The entrance to open loop portion 11, formed by end portion 17 leading to passage 13 is positioned adjacent a selected branch 25. If the device is being used to secure a wire 26 of a decorative light set in one of the securement arrangements of the invention, the wire 26 is placed over the branch as shown in FIG. 2 and the entrance to open loop portion 11 is positioned at the intersection of the branch and wire. The device is pulled against the branch in the direction of arrow 27. The loop will flex to enlarge passage 13 so that branch 25 will pass through passage 13 as the device is moved in the direction of the arrow 27 and pass into circular area 21. Open loop portion 11 will close around branch 25 to secure the device to the branch as shown in FIG. 3. Wire 26 is then held in place on branch 25 as shown in FIG. 3. With the current arrangement of the end portion 17 and transition 23 therefrom to relatively short straight portion 16, the device slips easily onto branch 25. With the described arrangement of the transition 24 from the arcuate portion 15 to relative short straight portion 16, it is difficult to slide the device from branch 25. A branch 25 does not have to completely fill circular area 21 for the device to be secured thereto. The branch 25 merely need be larger than passage 13 so that it does not easily pass back through the passage to release the device. Thus, the device will clamp a wire to the branch and hold it in position and will stay on the branch even when loose about the branch.

With the device of the invention secured to branch 25 as shown in FIG. 3, open loop portion 12 is available to receive and hang an ornament 28. Alternately, light string wire 26, rather than being held in place over branch 25 by open loop portion 11 around branch 25, could be positioned in and held in place by open loop portion 12. Tinsel and other garlands could be secured and held to branch 25 in the same manner as wire 26. Further, if a light wire, garland, ornament, or other item is to be supported in position at a greater distance below branch 25, one or more additional devices could be used, one hung from the other end-to-end, to support such item at any desired distance from the branch.

When it is desired to remove the device from the branch 25, a user could, using the entrance to passage 13 formed by end portion 17, flex open loop portion 11 to open passage 13 to allow the device to be removed from branch 25. A preferred method of removal, because it is generally easier, is to grasp the device and twist it as shown by arrow 30 in FIG. 4 to flex open loop portion 11 and straight central portion 10 so that the end of the loop formed by relatively short straight portion 16 and end portion 17 are rotated approximately 90° from their original positions to thereby open passage 13 as shown in FIG. 4, and while in that position, the device is moved upwardly in the direction of arrow 31 and removed from the branch 25. After removal, the material returns to its original configuration and the removed device is shown in FIG. 5.

While it is preferred that relatively short straight portions 16 and 19 extend parallel to central portion 10, this is not necessary and in some instances, particularly with the smaller loop, warpage during cooling of the device after molding may result in portion 19 extending at an angle to central relatively short straight portion 10.

While it is preferred that the branch on which the device is secured fits within the space normally formed by the arcuate portion, with the materials used and the configuration of the device as shown, even if the branch is somewhat bigger than the opening normally formed by the arcuate portion, the device will flex and effectively clamp and hold the branch.

Whereas this invention is here illustrated and described with reference an embodiment thereof presently contemplated as the best mode of carrying out such invention in actual practice, it is to be understood that various changes may be made in adapting the invention to different embodiments without departing from the broader inventive concepts disclosed herein and comprehended by the claims that follow.

FEATURED ON THE HOME EDIT SHOW ON NETFLIX!
Episode 1.

New York Handbag Designer Jacki Easlick invented the new Tote Hanger®. These premium hooks are especially engineered to hang your handbags with elegance and balance. It's a small metal hook that is designed to hang on any traditional clothing rod just like coat hangers.

Simply remove the contents of your handbag and hang your handbag on the hook. Made out of nickel and the size is 3-3/4"h x 2"w. 6 hooks per pack.

We own the patent and trademark. Please do not purchase from Amazon, they are knock off products not approved by our company.

The Tote Hangers are sold at The Container Stores, Lowes, ETSY and Wayfair.

Texas-ness Problem Solver for us. Reviewed in the United States on May 17, 2023. Vine Customer Review of Free Product... For the closet, the tool shed, the doors, windows, the rear gate, for seasonal hangings that don't need a sticky strip, and I can hang a pound or two safely. My wife's purse collecting fetish clogging up her closet is why I bought these. She hangs them from hangers...multiple purses, bags, bras, handcuffs, latigo, bridle...everything in her closet, and these hooks became a great solution. They're coated in rubber or latex and tipped. Each hook has 2 hooks, and one is larger than the other...for more bags to hang on. 4 stars because I feel like more than 2 pounds and they will begin bending. They are metal. I will be ordering more.

Marcie Dallas VINE VOICE Works good for light items. Reviewed in the United States on August 1, 2023. Vine Customer Review of Free Product... These work great for what they are marketed for like belts and scarves. They are easy to hang pretty much anywhere so you don't need a lot of space for them. They are nice to have for all the odd things that you don't have a place to hang.

Helpful Report

ring0 VINE VOICE Well coated. Bendable if you really try. Reviewed in the United States on May 20, 2023. Vine Customer Review of Free Product... These hooks are very well coated (though I wish I knew with what - it doesn't smell like PVC). If you pull/push hard you can in fact bend them, so I would want to use them for tools in the garage. For clothing they should be fine.

Coco Leche VINE VOICE Don't pass on these fantastic, versatile multi-purpose hooks! Reviewed in the United States on June 3, 2023. Vine Customer Review of Free Product... I love these hooks and are a great buy for just $1 apiece! These are large and better than regular S hooks. These twisted hooks are space savers that look and feel well-made and very sturdy. They're described as being able to hold up to 50 pounds, and I believe it. These unique hooks are a great way to help you stay organized. I imagine you can use them in every area of your home. I use one to hang my small ladder up in the basement so I can stop kicking it as I walk by the place I had it propped up in the kitchen. They make the best purse hangers, can be used to hang plants outside or belts in your bedroom closet, and are a stylish and durable way to hang your pots and pans in the kitchen. They are sleek and black, fitting any décor, and have rubber tips to protect your items and possibly keep the hooks from slipping off. They are also large enough to fit nearly any rod.

I wish I had gotten some of these a long time ago. You should grab some so you can see how great they are as well.

★★★★★ Serve their intended purpose very well and are stronger than I assumed.

Reviewed in the United States on May 30, 2023

Vine Customer Review of Free Product (What's this?)

First off, these are marketed as closet hangers for bags, belts clothes etc. So, I only tested them in that capacity and only use them for that and they come in very handy as such. I was looking for something to help organize my belts better in my closet and one of these holds quite a few of them in a fashion that I can clearly see which ones I have hung.

These hooks have a rubber coating and are quite sturdy. I pulled on them and it takes a bit of force to get them to bend, much more force than any of the above listed items would place on them. The heaviest thing I have in my closet is a tactical vest with front and back ballistic plates in it. I hung that hanger from these hooks and there was no give at all. I have used quite a few to hang my wife's bags in the back of the closet as well. Due to the shape of these hooks the bags hang with the smaller sides facing out, conserving space in the closet. I am very happy I stumbled across these and am very happy with them. I will be getting more to hang more bags of my wife's.

★★★★★ Convenient, fit on a variety of closet hanging solutions

Reviewed in the United States on June 21, 2023

Vine Customer Review of Free Product (What's this?)

These are big, they fit on every hanging rack on every closet in my house. Others only fit on the thinnest metal rods, but these fit larger rods as well. They are completely coated, not just the tips. Not sure what they're coated in, but it's kind of cushioned and grippy. Working nicely to hang bags in my closet. They seem very sturdy when used to hang bags. I have one or two bags on each hook. Would order them again.

★★★★★ Exactly what I have been searching for!

Reviewed in the United States on May 26, 2023

Vine Customer Review of Free Product (What's this?)

You know how sometimes you know what you want but don't know the right thing to call it so it's very hard to search for it? That was exactly my situation with these hangers. I had found variations of them that sort of solved the problem, but they involved threading the top part of the hanger on a rod, which made it impossible to remove without taking the whole rod down. These hangers are perfect! You can move them around so easily. They're so nice because things with handles, like purses, can neatly hang perpendicular to the wall. These hangers are really well-made. They are not at all flimsy and could hold a fair amount of weight if you needed them to. Don't hesitate. They are really great!

Vine Customer Review of Free Product (What's this?)

So glad I found this the. hangers that came with the closet we use now easily, break upon placing a purse on it. Even though it was meant for purses. These are so thick and durable. Can hang two purses if not more on one of these opposed to what I was able to do before. I'm so happy. I found this because it has been a major struggle with my closet being so jam packed with bags. It's nice to have a simple. item that gives me the room that I need. And I don't have to worry about my son or bags being ruined by a cheap. hanger. I highly recommend these to anyone who is a bag enthusiast.

D. Owen Just what I needed. Reviewed in the United States on February 15, 2023. Color: Black Size: 30 Pack Verified Purchase. These 5 hooks worked great for hanging up my purses to sell. No more taking all of them off the rod to get to one. They also worked great for multiple things to display. I'm going to order more sets so my husband can hang his lights around our trailer when we go camping. Wish they came in Pink is all.

 ★★★★★ Closet Hooks
 Reviewed in the United States on August 16, 2023
 Color: Black Vine Customer Review of Free Product (What's this?)
 I got these to hang bags, scarves, and accessories and they work well for this. It's easy to hang it over the bar just like a hanger, then hang the item on the end. There's really not much to it, lol.

 Reviewed in the United States on July 11, 2023
 Color: Black Vine Customer Review of Free Product (What's this?)
 These are so useful. I like that they have rubber-coated tips so your stuff doesn't snag. They have an impressive weight capacity. I hung both my delicate scarves and hefty totes on them and it holds them up like a champ so I can sort my things in my closet and find them quickly.

I love that they stack to take up very little space when not in use (see first photo).

Great closet organizational tool!

★★★★★ These do the job they're supposed to do
Reviewed in the United States on September 23, 2022

Good solid hangers. I use them for the plethora -- PLETHORA! -- of laptop and camera bags I've accumulated over the years and won't part with. These hangers allow me to... hang them in my office closet instead of taking up excessive shelf space or keeping them in a pile on the floor.

If they can handle laptop bags, camera bags, and backpacks, they'll probably hang purses and other things with handles just fine.

Product Description

PURSE HANGING HOOKS

Working out the perfect storage solution for your purses has always been a conundrum...if you put them in a storage bin, they will lose shape; if you put them under the bed, they'll be out of sight (and out of mind) and if you store them at the bottom of your closet, they will get dusty.

We have the perfect solution - the Home Deputy Purse Hanging Hooks for your closet.

The unique design of the twist on the classic S hook means you can hang your handbags side by side alongside your clothes providing the perfect space-saving storage solution.

 These purse hooks are very nice because they take up very little space in the closet. So you can hang a few purses without taking up alot of your closet space.

★★★★★ Perfect for vacation

Reviewed in the United States on January 2, 2023

Color: Silver Verified Purchase

We go to Aruba on vacation where it can start pouring out of nowhere while you are away from your bags so we use these to hang the bags directly under the umbrella to keep them dry and off the floor. Worked perfectly. Also works to hang from back of beach chair.

★★★★☆ Very Sturdy Hooks

Reviewed in the United States on September 21, 2022

Color: Black Verified Purchase

These hooks are solid and can hold heavy items. Good design and can stack next to each other hanging, if empty. Only downside is, is the price for 6 it's pretty expensive at $15.99

★★★★★ Great for organizing purses and belts.

Reviewed in the United States on September 2, 2022

Color: Black Verified Purchase

I like the fact that I can get my backpacks and convertible backpack/purses up off the floor and organized. Since I only needed 4 of these hangers, my husband found a good use for the other two. His belts are now hanging rather than taking up shelf space. I thought the price was a bit high for these small hangers but they are a sturdy metal and do work well for us.
